MAY SEND CARTER TO THE CHAIR

James B. Jennings, known in boxing circles as "Young Kid Carter," will die in the electric chair for the killing of Mildred Donovan of Revere, according to evidence now in the office of the District Attorney of Middlesex County.

Jennings is serving a life sentence in the Charlestown State Prison for the murder of William H. McPherson, a waiter, in a South End saloon on New Year's Day.

The evidence against Jennings furnishes the State with a motive for the crime. It also places Jennings at the scene of the crime and it further establishes his identity beyond question of doubt.

Jennings came within an ace of adding another murder to his confessed list of crimes, according to Frank A. Menard, the stepfather of the murdered woman.

Threatened Girl's Mother.

"I am confident that Jennings meant to shoot Mildred's mother the day before he killed Mildred," said Mr. Menard today. "The day before the crime he tried to shoot my wife in the back. She and Mildred and Jennings were in one of the downstairs rooms. My wife turned suddenly and saw Jennings pointing a revolver directly at her. At the same moment Mildred rushed forward and threw her apron over the gun.

"Here, what have you got that awful thing for?" my wife cried.

"O, I'll get rid of it at once," Jennings reassured her, smiling. "I think he meant to kill all of my family. I know he meant to get me."

Mr. Menard demands that Jennings be sent to the electric chair. He believes there is evidence enough against him to convict him of the crime he confesses.

This evidence is alleged to show:

1. That two witnesses saw Jennings leaping the fence of Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden, within a few minutes of the time Jennings says he choked to death Mildred Donovan.

2. That a pair of gloves, the thumb burned by a cigarette, were found a few feet from the body.

3. That these gloves were identified as belonging to Jennings by a witness who was present when Jennings burned the gloves.

4. That Jennings' blood-soaked clothing is now in the possession of a woman relative in Dorchester, who refused to deliver them to the prosecution.

5. That Jennings had already been given money with which to flee the State, by a relative, before he was arrested for McPherson's murder.

Higgins' Plans.

That District Attorney Higgins is practically convinced Jennings' confession is true in part was learned today. He has had a long conference with Mr. Menard, who demands vengeance for his daughter's murder.

At the close of the conference District Attorney Higgins declared he would push his investigation to substantiate the truth of Jennings' confession to the limit.

"I am investigating Jennings's confession and shall keep at it until some

FENWAY PARK, April 19.—Through a series of mishaps and wildness on the part of Pitcher James, coupled with heavy hitting and daring base running by the Giants, the latter made it three straight over the Pilgrims by capturing the morning game today 7 to 2. Ames twirled for the Giants and, although a bit unsteady at times, he tightened up when hits meant runs. Both teams played without their captains. Bill Sweeney was suspended yesterday for umpire baiting, and Larry Doyle was benched today for the same thing, pending a hearing from President Lynch.

Pope Still Gains in Life Battle, Say Physicians

ROME, April 19.—The latest news from the sickroom in the Vatican, at 4:16 today, said that the Pope had been wakeful for some time, although he appears calm. His only attendant noticed that his lips were moving as if in prayer. The pontiff insisted that all but one of the attendants retire from the room during the night. Brundy has been administered in small quantities frequently. The distressing vomiting appears to have stopped.

The doctors have decided to issue only one bulletin daily unless there is an unexpected turn for the worse.

The Pope was again visited today by his brother, Angelo. There was an affecting scene as the brothers embraced.

LIGHTNING FIRES HOUSE; SCARE IN JAMAICA PLAIN

Several persons living in the three-story wooden dwelling at No. 102 Paul Gore street, Jamaica Plain, were frightened during the rain storm early today when a bolt of lightning struck the cupola and set fire to the house.

The crash aroused the neighborhood. Scores of persons ran into the street and when the flames crept down into the top floor the occupants of the house fled to the sidewalk. The firemen confined the fire to the top floor, occupied by Mrs. Bertha Kaushaar and family.

ALLIES APPEAL TO MONTENEGRO TO END THE WAR

CETTINJE, Montenegro, April 19.—Montenegro was again enjoined today by Bulgaria to join the other governments of the Balkan league in accepting Europe's arbitration in the Balkan war. Bulgaria, Servia and Greece have signified their readiness to end the war, but Montenegro still holds out.

BURGLAR ALARM SCARE AT BANK

OSLER IS ANSWERED BY CARDINAL

BALTIMORE, April 19.—When part of the speech of Sir William Osler, at the dedicatory exercises of the Phipps psychiatric clinic at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, was read today to Cardinal Gibbons, the prelate exclaimed, "I am shocked."

Sir William, who is professor of medicine in Oxford University, said in part:

"Ninety-nine per cent. of our fellow creatures, when in trouble, sorrow or sickness, trust to charms and incantations and to the saints. Many a shrine has more followers than Pasteur; many a saint more believers than Lister. Mentally the race is still in leading strings."

"Scientists in any line sometimes make statements such as that of Dr. Osler," said the Cardinal, "and only a short time ago, I had to defend some truths that Thomas A. Edison attacked. The scientific specialists think their statements should go unchallenged, but this one of Dr. Osler shall not, and I shall write to him asking him to retract it.

"I would like to call the attention of Dr. Osler to the fact that Pasteur was a devoted Catholic and put his trust in the saints. He said that as his knowledge of medicine grew his faith grew likewise. The statement attributed to Dr. Osler are an attack on Christianity. I am surprised that he should make such attacks in this age."

WILSON URGES CALIFORNIA TO BE CAUTIOUS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Agitation, either at home or abroad, will not move President Wilson into the admission that there exists any reason for a war scare in the Japanese situation.

He emphasized this today when he declined to meet a delegation of Californians who favor anti-alien land-owning legislation.

Through Secretary of State Bryan the President today requested Governor Johnson, of California, to use all his influence to prevent the passage of any anti-alien land law through the California Legislature without due deliberation and consideration of the consequences. The text of the message to Governor Johnson was not divulged, but it is known that it was an emphatic appeal to prevent any hair-trigger action on the part of the California Legislature, not because the United States fears a war with Japan, but to prevent any possible diplomatic complications.

FAST TIME MADE FROM THE START

Seventy-five of the greatest distance runners in America started at Ashland today in the seventeenth annual Marathon of the Boston Athletic Association. The start was made at noon under ideal weather conditions, which prevailed for the first half dozen miles of the run. Along the course were holiday throngs of thousands of men, women and children, stretching the entire twenty-five miles to the finish on Exeter street.

LYNN RUNNER LED AT THE START.

On the crack of the pistol Charles E. Neary of Lynn sprinted ahead into the lead. Anastas K. Sturgis of the North Dorchester A. A. followed at his heels. The pace was too fast for both, and they were easily nosed out and soon passed far behind by Harry J. Smith of the Bronx Church House, New York.

Smith passed Henry and Sturgis on the first mile post. William H. Allan of the Hamilton A. A. of Hamilton, Ont., forged ahead out of the field and was soon taking the light mud which Smith flicked from his heels with every step. From that point on until South Framingham was reached, Smith and Allan widened the gap between them and the rest. At South Framingham they were more than a quarter of a mile ahead of the next runner—George McInerny of the Shanahan C. C. of Philadelphia.

Smith's Time Ahead of Average.

Smith's time to South Framingham, a distance of nearly five miles, was 21 minutes 33 seconds, which is slightly better than the average in previous Marathons. Allan was only about two yards behind the leader.

The Boston star runners were apparently content to follow along, in order to be strong at the finish. Tom Lilley of the North Dorchester A. A. and Festus Madden, the South Boston speedfoot, ran easily and made no effort to overtake Smith. Andy Sockalexis, the Indian runner from Oldtown, Me., was also content to remain with the field in the first five miles.

"I Can Stand the Pace."

Smith's pace on the go was very fast. He was cautioned repeatedly to cut down his speed.

"No fear," he retorted. "I can stand the pace."

Others passed South Framingham in the following order:

Alfred G. Horne, North Dorchester A. A.; Edward Fabre, Montreal; Festus Madden, running under the North Dorchester aegis; Clarence B. Lucas, Fall River; Arthur Harrop, Fall River; Charles Horne, North Dorchester.

The roads on the start were in fair shape, which made the going good. A thundershower forced the runners to slacken their pace between South Framingham and Natick. Conditions on the first five miles were similar to those which prevailed at the Olympic Marathon in Stockholm last year.

With the crowds along the course the Boston hubs were the big favorites. Madden, Lilby and Sockalexis, who ran under the North Dorchester A. A. emblem, were cheered again and again.

Harry J. Smith of the Bronx Church House, New York, held the lead at Natick, nine miles from the start, passing that point at 12:42:22, which is better than the mark made by Michael J. Ryan in his B. A. A. record run of last year. Smith maintained the fast pace which had kept him in the lea dafter the first mile out from Ashland.

Smith was pushed close by William H. Allan of the Hamilton A. A., Hamilton, Canada. The two were separated by nearly a minute of time from Edward of Montreal. The rest of the runners were strung out along the road. Others in order were George McInerny of Philadelphia, Alfred Howe of Brookline and Festus Madden, North Dorchester A. A.

"SONS" SCORE CURLEY STORY OF TEA PARTY

Congressman James M. Curley's version of the Boston Tea Party and similar stories that reflect upon the heroism and fame of the Revolutionary patriots should be refuted by every Son of the American Revolution, declares President Edwin S. Crandon in his address at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution at the Old South Church.

"We should be prepared," asserted the president, "to come forth without hesitation and present the actual facts of any event during these historic times. It is for us to defend the fair name and fame of the brave heroes and patriots who struggled for liberty.

"When such a discussion as that arises in connection with the statements made by Congressman Curley in relation to the Boston Tea Party arises, every member of this society should be ready to give to the public the actual occurrences as they took place."

About two hundred members of the society were gathered into the church to music by the Worcester Continental Fife and Drum Corps uniformed in the Continental dress.

During the exercises Steven B. Smith, the only actual son of a revolutionary patriot present, was introduced. He is eighty-two years old and lives in Weymouth.

After the speaking the annual election took place and Luther Atwood of Lynn was elected president as were also the following: Vice-presidents, Frank Ernest Woodward, Wellesley Hills; Rev. Newton Marshall Hall, Springfield; Vernon Ashley Field, Chelsea; Secretary and registrar, Herbert Wood Kimball, Woburn; treasurer, Charles Monteville Green, M. D., Boston; historian, Brigadier-General Philip Reade, United States Army (retired), Lowell; chaplain, Rev. Lewis Wilder Hicks, Wellesley; managers, for three years, Charles Greenough Chick, Hyde Park; Arthur French Clarke, Brookline; Walter Stevens Fox, Dorchester; Frank Somrill, Roxbury; Walter Kendall Watkins, Malden.

Thousands Greet Senator Crane at Big Dalton Fete

DALTON, April 19.—Former United States Senator W. Murray Crane made one of the longest speeches of his career today when in just 190 words he thanked citizens of Dalton for the gift of a massive loving cup, and other citizens of Berkshire County who took part in the celebration in honor of his sixtieth birthday and his return to Dalton as a private citizen. Lieutenant-Governor-elect Governor and Senator, Mr. Crane has been sixteen years in the public service. The celebration today had no political significance, citizens of all parties uniting in it.

Chester B. Scudder, a prominent G. A. R. man, made the presentation of the loving cup and an album containing resolutions and the names of the donors. The ceremony took place on a platform near the Town Hall.

"I am greatly pleased and deeply touched by this kind reception," said former Senator Crane. "No one can value more than I do the good will of friends and neighbors at home."

A parade in which the military companies, citizens and school children of the entire county took part, followed.

A fireworks display and bonfire will close the festivities tonight.

Knights of Columbus Observe Patriots' Day with Banquet

This evening, at the Copley-Plaza, is the annual Patriots' Day celebration by the State Council of the Knights of Columbus in the form of a reception to Cardinal O'Connell.

Other prominent guests will be Lieutenant-Governor Walsh, Lieutenant-Governor Glynn of New York, Lieutenant-Governor McDermott of Kentucky, Mayor Fitzgerald, District Attorney Pelletier and some 500 leading members of the order throughout Massachusetts and New England.

Much interest is centred in the presence of the Lieutenant-Governor of New York, who makes his first public appearance in Massachusetts this evening.

Lieutenant-Governor Glynn has had a progressive career. He was born on a farm in New York State. He became an honor graduate at Fordham University, a member of Congress, Commpreller of New York and last Fall was elected Lieutenant-Governor. He was at one time managing editor of the Albany Times-Union and is now its publisher.

SECOND "ALL WELL" MESSAGE BY MARTIN FROM SWITZERLAND

LONDON, April 19.—A second trip gram, supposedly from Joseph Wilberforce Martin, the missing Memphis cotton broker, was received in this city today by Captain Prior, one of Martin's friends, and set at rest all doubt as to Martin's safety. The telegram came from Vevey, Switzerland, and was a counterpart of the message received last night by Lockhart Anderson. It said:

Cease inquiries. All well. Am writing. JOSEPH W. MARTIN.

The search for Martin has now ceased and it remains for the American himself to clear up the mystery surrounding his strange disappearance on April 8.

Detective William J. Burns, who dropped out of the case yesterday, made a significant remark when asked why he had abandoned his hunt.

"My first obligations are to the American Bankers' Association," said Mr. Burns.

This remark, taken in connection with an earlier report that nearly 1000 nine-house certificates held by Martin's firm for stored cotton had been found to be forgeries, was regarded as having significance.

SAYS CARTER TRIED TO KILL GIRL'S MOTHER

definite end is reached," said the District Attorney.

"While I will admit or deny nothing at present, I will say that the law allows a man sentenced to life imprisonment to be tried for murder in the first degree.

The District Attorney reached his conclusion only after the most careful scrutiny of legal precedents at conferences held with Attorney-General Swift and District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier of Suffolk county.

The trial of Jennings will be the first instance in the criminal annals of the State that a convict has been tried on the charge of first degree murder after having been convicted of a crime carrying a life sentence.

Who some of the people were whom Jennings, in his confession admitted he murdered is being investigated by the Boston police. There are several crimes which the police would like to have Jennings clear up.

After his release from solitary confinement in the State prison today, if Jennings still feels in a confessing mood, Boston police may interview him with the hope of clearing up the circumstances of these murders.

Frank A. Menard, Mildred Donovan's step-father furnished the first motive for Jennings' murder of his daughter the police have yet discovered. Mr. Menard believes Jennings wished to get rid of his daughter so he could rob the Metropolitan coal office in Revere at a time he knew several thousand dollars were in the safe.

Mr. Menard said:

"Oh, it is all so plain to me now. I think he meant to kill all of my family. I think he meant to get me. On the day before the murder I am confident that he attempted to shoot my wife in the back in my own home. My wife feels the same way. You see, Carter, in my opinion, put up a proposition to Mildred to carry my money over to the bank at the Metropolitan coal office and to accompany her over in order to avoid suspicion. Then he was going to hold up the office.

"I believe Mildred gave it to him good and hard because of such a proposition and that Carter believed she had told her mother about it. I believe this was some days before the crime.

"From the minute the suspicion entered Carter's head that Mildred was going to give him away he wasn't out of her sight a minute. I remember this all now. He came constantly to the house.

"New Year's eve, the night the murder was committed, I remember now how he acted while at the house. He watched the girl incessantly and he was nervous and his head was covered with perspiration."

Doubts Part of Confession.

District Attorney Higgins doubts the truth of Jennings' statement that he choked Mildred Donovan to death by pressure on the arteries for eighteen minutes. He is backed up in this belief by Professor Whitney of Harvard and Medical Examiner Burrell of Middlesex, who were present at the autopsy on the woman's body.

He said:

As a matter of fact the examination of Mrs. Donovan's body tended to show that she was probably struck by a revolver butt or a fist on or near the upper part of the nose, causing hemorrhage. As she fell and lay unconscious on her back blood ran down into her throat, and eventually into the windpipe, finally choking her to death.

If she had been choked by hands grasping her throat, fingerprints must have been evident, but her throat bore no such marks.

SEEK ACCOMPLICE IN DIETZ MURDER; MRS. DIETZ BAILED

CHICAGO, April 19.—The police are seeking another man suspected of complicity in the murder of George Dietz, who was found with his skull crushed by a hammer.

Mrs. Dietz and George Nurnberg, charged with murder, were released by Judge Goodwin under $10,000 each, ignoring the recommendation of the coroner's jury.

Mrs. Dietz appeared in the Probate Court and was appointed administratrix of her husband's estate, which consisted of $1,500 in property and $10,000 in life insurance.

LUMBERMEN FOUND GUILTY OF FRAUD

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 19.—The five promoters and former officers of the International Lumber & Development Company were today found guilty of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. A sealed verdict was submitted to Federal Judge Wilmer. Those convicted are: John R. Markley, of Chicago, chief promoter of the company; Noah B. Miller, his partner; Charles M. McMahon, former secretary and treasurer; William Armstrong, Jr., former general manager, and Colonel Alfred G. Stewart, a director and commissioner.

James Scarlet, chief counsel for the defence, made an appeal for an arrest of judgment for three days in which time a motion for a new trial could be filed. Bail was then given by the convicted men in the sum of $15,000 each, pending the outcome of the appeal.

STATE HONORS BIRTHDAY OF REVOLUTION

With booming of cannon in various parts of the State, Patriots' Day was ushered in at sunrise today. And then followed services in the different churches. Military, patriotic and other organizations in and about Greater Boston are lending their assistance in fittingly commemorating the day.

Last night and early today hundreds of persons meandered on foot and in vehicles to the vicinity of the Old North Church, Salem street, and looked aloft at the lanterns hung there late yesterday afternoon by Paul Revere, Jr., a descendant of the original Paul Revere who "spread the alarm through every Middlesex town, village and farm" that the British were coming in 1775.

Here is the list of events for the day:

All day convention of Odd Fellows, Worcester.

Morning and Afternoon—Massachusetts Division, United Boys' Brigade of America, field day at Middlesex Fells Reservation.

10:30 a. m.—Massachusetts Society, Sons of the American Revolution, annual business meeting at Old South Meeting House.

MINSTRELSY FOR BASEBALL FUND

The members of the Samoc Baseball Club of Dorchester will give a minstrel show tonight in Winston Hall, Centre street, Dorchester. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the team fund. The show will start at 8 o'clock. A baseball skit, in which Arthur Crapo, Henry Perry, Joseph Olin, Arthur Heath, William King, George Watson, Charles Talbot and Grace McDonald will take part, and a sketch called "The Spirit of '76," will be part of the entertainment.

MANY SPEAKERS TO DISCUSS ROXBURY

Social conditions in Roxbury will be discussed by prominent speakers at the meeting of the Roxbury Improvement Society, which will be held in the ward room of the Courthouse, Roxbury street, Monday evening. There will be plain talks on the subject by those who know. Roger Scannell, Jr., of Ward 16, president of the organization, will preside.

THIRD TRIPLET IS DEAD AT 80

NEW YORK, April 19.—Mrs. Hope Prower Alloun, the third of triplets born in England eighty years ago and named Faith, Hope and Charity, is dead today in Greenwich, Ct. Charity reached fifty-two and Faith seventy-four.

'Votes for Women' Bomb Is Found at Plymouth, England

PLYMOUTH, Eng., April 19.—An infernal machine with "Votes for women" and "Death in ten minutes" painted upon it was found today lodged against the entrance gate to Smeat tower, near the Hoe, a rocky promontory near the edge of this city.

A gale of wind blowing in from the channel had extinguished the time fuse attached to the bomb. Investigation showed that it had been extinguished a little less than ten minutes before the explosive in the machine would have been reached. Near by was a placard with the inscription: "Votes or Death." The bomb was turned over to the police. It was found to contain a large quantity of high power blasting powder and slugs.

The wave of terror created by the suffragettes with fire and explosives is spreading all over England. No community feels itself safe from their depredations.

TWO HURT AS AUTO GOES OVER BANK

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 19.—An auto in which Walter C. Cunningham, the Denver millionaire cotton goods manufacturer, and his wife, formerly Miss Marjorie Hamilton of Chicago, were riding, plunged down an embankment between here and Avon late last night, and both Cunningham and his wife were seriously injured.

Hooray! Learn to Play Piano in One Hour FREE.

Musical Genius From Chicago Has Invented Wonderful System by Which Any One Can Learn to Play Piano in Sixty Minutes at Home, Without Any Previous Knowledge of Music.

This System Is Certainly Wonderful. An Hour Ago I Couldn't Play a Note."

Even accomplished musicians have been dumfounded at the wonderful system invented by a musical prodigy from Chicago, whereby anyone can learn to play the piano or organ in an hour at home. Impossible, you say! We are going to prove it at our expense. You don't have to know one note from another. Yet in sixty minutes' time, you can be playing the popular music with all the fingers of both hands, and playing it well.

Even a child can easily master this wonderful, simple system. Don't merely wish you could play the piano or organ. Try this new system and play in an hour. Surprise the members of your family. Surprise your friends—surprise yourself. Any one can have this method absolutely free to try. Music complete system, bound in beautiful red morocco style binding, together with 100 pieces of music, will be sent you, all charges paid, without a cent to pay. Keep it a week if you want to, to thoroughly prove that it is all that is claimed for it. Then, if you are satisfied, send us $1.50 and $1.00 a month, until $6.50 in all is paid. If you are not delighted with it at the end of a week, return it, and you will owe us absolutely nothing. Simply send your name and address, state number of white keys on your piano or organ, also postoffice and express office. Address Easy Method Music Co., 311 Clarkson Building, Chicago. Write today.

BLACK FOXES

United States Consul Wesley Frost, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, reports as follows:

"A phenomenal expansion is taking place in the Black Fox industry on Prince Edward Island. Although a report upon this subject was published in the United States Consular and Trade Report for March 17, 1911, the development since that time has been so rapid and so important that an entirely fresh treatment is called for."

The ranch of the Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company will be situated near Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, and will contain fourteen pair best bred Silver Black Foxes, for which we have signed agreements.

Bonfires on the Island bring pairs of foxes to sell at $5,000 to $6,000. 50% to 100% this year, and stockholders refuse to part with their holdings at double the original cost.

Prices on Black Foxes are steadily increasing. The business is secure, as the breeders will be willing to supply the animals for years to come.

The Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company are offering a limited amount of their stock at par, $100 a share. As most all companies heretofore formed have been oversubscribed, those desiring to become interested in our company should subscribe at once. Taking into consideration the success of others engaged in the business, the stock in the Massachusetts Silver Black Fox Company should be worth double its par value in one year. 25% of amount subscribed for must accompany the application, and the balance on or before August 1, 1913. Write, telephone or call at our office for prospectus, which contains information from reliable sources.

LILLIAN ROUNDS REJOICES IN HOSPITAL VISIT

Relieved by her visit with her sweetheart, Herbert Larner, at the Cambridge Hospital, Miss Lillian Rounds has had the first real hours of sleep since the duel in which her brother William J. Rounds, Jr., stabbed Larner with a pocket knife.

Miss Rounds had been refused the opportunity to see the wounded youth on the first day of his life in the hospital, and was overjoyed when she received permission to see him for a few minutes. On her way home from the hospital, she stopped at the Larner home, at No. 248 Massachusetts avenue, to inform the family of Larner's condition.

At the hospital it is said that Larner's chances for recovery are rapidly improving, and that unless the unforeseen sets in there is no danger. He is required, however, to remain absolutely quiet.

William Rounds has been sent out of the city and will remain away, with friends, until his case is called on April 29.

The first meeting of Miss Rounds and young Larner was effecting.

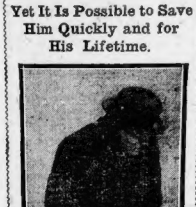
She was taken to the door of Larner's room by one of the nurses. When she saw him, she broke away from the nurse, ran across the room and knelt at the side of the cot, taking both his hands in hers.

Larner was the first to speak. With his hands tightly held in hers and all but breaking into tears, he said: "Never mind, Lillian. It will all come out all right."

DRINKING DID IT

NOW HE IS A HUMAN WRECK

Yet It Is Possible to Save Him Quickly and for His Lifetime.



WHY NOT SAVE HIM?

Only a few years ago this man was one of the most popular of the younger generation in his home town. He had everything he could wish—a fine name, an excellent position, an attractive young wife and many true friends. Then he began to drink, and slowly but surely King Alcohol caught him in his grip. He neglected his work, his real friends left him, and he drifted from bad to worse company. He found his wife in such a manner that she was compelled to leave him, he lost his position, and his only "friends" were the saloon keepers and his drinking acquaintances. But when his money was all gone they also left him, and he came to the big city to try his luck. He endeavored to give up drinking, but the craving overpowered him every time, and his very last pennies were spent on "booze."

And now he is "down and out"; he tries to sleep on the benches in the parks, but the policemen turns him away, and, shivering, he tries to find shelter somewhere. Nobody wants his services, for he is one of the millions of victims ruined each year by King Alcohol.

I WAS IN A SIMILAR POSITION.

There was a time when I was in nearly the same condition, when I lost position after position, made my family miserable and ruined my health. Everybody expected me to end in the gutter, as I was absolutely ruined, and now I am a respectable man. I never touch alcoholic beverages—have no desire for them. I have a business of my own and enjoy life as never before. Every drinker can do the same as I did; every drinker's wife, mother or sister may save him from ruin secretly, without his knowledge, if need be and make the home happy.

SYMPHONY, IN DEAD MARCHES, MOURNS PLAYER

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The dead march which commences Mahler's Fifth Symphony affected profoundly the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon, for when they assembled for the concert they were informed that H. Schuecker, the harpist of the orchestra, had died.

Mr. Schuecker was stricken with heart trouble during the Cecilia concert Thursday night. He was removed from the hall and died after a few hours.

And by an odd coincidence Mahler's "Giant" Symphony commences with a dead march, and the whole orchestra thus lamented the passing of a comrade. Mr. Schuecker was one of the greatest harpists in the world and perhaps the most distinguished of all professors of that instrument.

Mahler's "Giant" Symphony was performed for the first time in seven years.

Takes Hour and Half.

The work of Gustav Mahler, the famous conductor who died two years ago, and who was known in Boston through his visits with the Metropolitan Opera and the New York Philharmonic, is called "Giant" because of its proportions rather than its contents.

It is a work which takes an hour and a half to perform. I respectfully submit that this is too long for any symphony, no matter how brilliant it may be.

Richard Strauss, astute genius that he is, with an orchestral power that eclipses Mahler, and a melodic facility that is at least equal, knows that he must not tax the patience of his audience and concludes his vivid and exciting tone poems within a reasonable period.

But poor old Mahler wanders on, garrulous as an old woman, saying his say until musicians are dead tired and audiences worn out, and in his verbosity ruins the magnificent ideas which his symphonies do contain.

Played with Skill.

There is grandeur, majesty, impressiveness in his Dead March begins the C Sharp minor symphony. There is gaiety and delight in his scherso and rondo. His finales are impressive and his beginnings are always interesting. But, oh, the long, dreary wastes in the middle when he is bouncing and heaving and wiggling around like an orator who has lost the thread of his discourse.

The great piece was played with marvelous skill. Dr. Muck, who was Mahler's chief conductor in Prague in the long ago, exerted all his strength and breathed his own forceful personality into the symphony.

And then the orchestra played three descriptive pieces from Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust," played them almost perfunctorily, but what a commentary they were upon the ambitions and pompous symphony that preceded them.

1400 AT ANNUAL DANCE OF SIEGEL BENEFIT SOCIETY

Nearly 1,400 members of the Henry Siegel Company Employes' Mutual Benefit Association gathered in Paul Revere Hall last night to hold the eighth annual ball of the association. It was voted the biggest kind of a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Siegel and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Stimson were the only invited guests. Mr. Siegel is the merchandise manager and Mr. Kramer is the general manager and president. J. McKeon was the floor director, assisted by D. Hanlon and Leo F. Supple. Officers of the ball and various committees were designated by different colored badges.

PAULINE REVERE, one of the direct descendants of hero of famous Revolutionary ride, who hung lantern in North Church belfry last night to commemorate historic event.

Boston's east wind was called unpatriotic today for blowing out a Paul Revere anniversary lantern. But the wind was gallant, at least, for it waited until Miss Pauline Revere of Roxbury, a direct descendant of Paul Revere, had hung out her lantern. It was when young Paul Revere, a pupil of St. Mark's School at Southboro, started to hang out the second lantern—as the famous poem relates—that the east wind tried to get the signals crossed by extinguishing the flame.

The prank of the wind took place in the evening celebration at the Old North Church on Salem street of the 138th anniversary of the original ride of Paul Revere.

A memorial service was conducted by Bishop William Lawrence before a gathering that filled the auditorium. Many prominent people attended.

Professor Charles T. Copeland of Harvard—the golden-tongued "Copey" of college fame—read Longfellow's poem, "Paul Revere's Ride."

Mayor Fitzgerald and Miss Rose and Miss Agnes Fitzgerald were present.

To carry out the anniversary idea it was arranged that two descendants of Paul Revere should hang out lanterns in the church tower in honor of the lantern signals which were shown to the rider waiting on the Charlestown shore.

Miss Pauline Revere, daughter of Mrs. Ernest Revere of No. 115 Dale street, Roxbury, met with no mishap. But the wind swooped down on the second lantern as related, and delayed the ceremonies until the lantern could be brought down, relighted and taken up again. This time the wind behaved and the two flames burned brightly, as did the historic ones of 1775.

Mrs. A. J. George Says Suffragists Achieve Nothing

WASHINGTON, April 19.—"Give us the ballot and we will get what we want," say the suffragists.

"They have had it in some form for from twenty to forty years and, what have they achieved for themselves and their cause?" demands Mrs. A. J. George of Boston, chief speaker at the opening of the anti-suffrage campaign here.

"Only three States prohibit women working at night," continued Mrs. George, "and, strange to say, they are all non-suffrage States, Massachusetts, Indiana and Nebraska. And it happens that the last child labor law in the land is also in a non-suffrage State—Massachusetts.

SCHOONER GROUNDS OFF WOODS HOLE

WOODS HOLE, April 19.—With all hands but the helmsman at the pumps and the water gaining constantly, the two-masted schooner Irene Mesereau staggered up Vineyard Sound early today and struck the beach at Tarpaulin Cove, just in time to prevent sinking. She grounded some yards off shore and was resting easily today.

MORGAN'S SON GETS BULK OF ENTIRE ESTATE

NEW YORK, April 19.—J. Pierpont Morgan is made his father's chief heir, succeeding as residuary legatee to the bulk of the fortune of the financier under his will, according to information which has come into the possession of the AMERICAN.

Not even the members of the family, to whom the will has been read, know yet the extent of the fortune which Mr. Morgan left, according to the AMERICAN'S reliable informant. No accurate estimate of the figures, it is said, can be made until after the estate has been appraised, the work of which unofficially is already under way.

It is possible, however, to state on the authority of one who is acquainted with certain definite terms of the will that the following specific bequests have been made:

To Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, the widow, is left the income of $3,000,000 for life, the principal on her death to revert to the estate. In addition, Mrs. Morgan also gets the use for life of the Morgan residence at 219 Madison avenue, as well as the country place at Highland Falls, N. Y.

To Miss Anne Morgan, a similar monetary bequest of $3,000,000 is made, the income from this amount to be paid to her during life. Should she marry and leave children, it is provided that the principal on her death shall revert to the children, but, should she die unmarried or childless, the full amount of the principal is to be provided, shall revert to the residuary estate. Under no conditions would it be possible under the will for Miss Morgan's husband to inherit the money.

To Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, formerly Laura A. P. Morgan, and Mrs. W. Pierson Hamilton, who was Juliet Morgan, the income of $3,000,000 is devised separately with the provision that upon their deaths the full sum in each case shall go to their children.

FIVE VOLUMES OF KNOWLEDGE TODAY IN AMERICAN OFFER

Now comes the distribution day of the Boston AMERICAN'S great book bargain. Coupon will be redeemed today at any of the branch offices shown in the coupon printed on another page of this issue.

Everybody's Cyclopedia is a five-volume reference work containing accurate information on all subjects. It is in convenient size, easy to handle and complete. No school boy and girl, no man and woman, can afford to miss the opportunity of getting it at the bargain price offered today.

For today the complete set of five volumes will be given to readers of the AMERICAN for $1.98 and one coupon. The regular selling price of this five-volume set is $12.

Millions of dollars are spent in putting out expensive sets that are sold on installment plan all the way from $50 to $100 each. Everybody's Cyclopedia is a combination of all the useful information contained in the large, cumbersome sets, but it is carefully "boiled down" to meet the needs of all who refer to a complete, accurate and authoritative reference work.

This offer is the result of the largest book order ever placed with a publisher, and readers are now given the benefit of it. The AMERICAN guarantees to refund the amount paid by any reader of Everybody's Cyclopedia who is not entirely satisfactory and as represented.

The sets are too bulky to be sent by mail, but out of town readers may get them for $1.98, the sets to be sent by express, shipping charges to be paid by the receiver.

MEMORIAL MASS FOR MGR. O'CALLAGHAN

St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, was crowded today when a solemn high mass of requiem was offered in memory of Monsignor O'Callaghan, for nearly fifty years pastor of the church. The memorial service was held under the auspices of St. Augustine's Lyceum, one of the oldest Catholic societies in Boston. The members met at their hall, Dorchester and National streets, and marched to the church, under the leadership of President John H. Newman.

The Rev. Henry Lyons was celebrant of the mass, Rev. Edward A. Connolly was deacon and Rev. M. C. Gilbride subdeacon.

EXPOSES EVIL OF 'KNOWINGLY' IN FOOD LAW

From Today's Boston Journal.

"A little word of nine letters, slipped into a bill that had protected the community of Massachusetts for thirty years, has caused death, illness and impaired health to thousands of persons, robbed the purchasing public of thousands of dollars yearly, and made the State of Massachusetts the chosen dumping ground for stale fish, tainted meat, musty eggs, 'wooden' oranges and all the varieties of unfit or adulterated food that is included under the wholesale auctioneers' comprehensive term 'as is.'"

Such is the statement of Joseph L. Johnson, city inspector of Cambridge, whose bill, known as Beacon Hill as the "Knowingly" bill, was reported by a committee of the Senate to the House last Wednesday, without a dissenting voice.

Mr. Johnson's bill, officially labeled as "Senate bill No. 166," is termed a bill to amend Chapter 293 of the acts of the year 1907, but really is a bill to restore the acts relative to the sale of unwholesome food to their original effectiveness, by omitting the word "knowingly," which was put in in that year.

* * * * * * *

"The word 'knowingly,'" says Mr. Johnson, "has had the effect of robbing a pure food act of any value and making the position of inspecting officers an intolerable one. It entirely relieves the dealer of all responsibility. A man who will poison the public is not likely to stop short of perjury when he is laid by the heels, and nothing is easier than for him to plead ignorance and substantiate his statement by the word of men who are dependent on him for employment.

"As a matter of fact, the dealer who hides behind the word 'knowingly,' not only knows his business through and through, but knows it too well. He has worked the problem for himself and knows that to buy food which is damaged or tainted, freshen it up, deodorize it, add preservative fluids and then sell it to retailers who have the fewest custom of the poor, is the shortest way to quick profits. * * *

"The bill suggested by Alton T. Briggs, secretary of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, changes the wording of the old bill, but leaves the substance where it was before. * * *

"A clause is added, laying the burden of proof of innocence on the shoulders of the dealer, and this has an air of broadening the law in favor of the consumer. But one only has to look at it a minute to see that it leaves matters just as they are now."

"HAPPY TWENTY" DAYLIGHT DANCE

The "Happy Twenty," composed of senior members of the Boston Newsboys' Club, held a most successful daylight dance in St. James Hall, Huntington avenue, today. A one dance, the "Floriadion," was introduced. The decorations in the hall were elaborate. Governor Foss and members of his staff, Mayor Fitzgerald and other city officials and Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Dinneen were among the people of note to whom invitation had been extended.

MAJOR WHIPPLE DIES IN SALEM

Major George M. Whipple died at his home in Salem today. He was born in Salem Jan. 9, 1830. He organized Company F, Twenty-Third Massachusetts Regiment, and was commissioned as captain October 12, 1861. He served until May 2, 1862, when he resigned. In 1861 and 1862 he was a member of the Legislature from Salem.

"LITTLE BLUE EYES," girl baby that was abandoned by woman at South Terminal, and who is now at Chardon street home.

Accustomed as they are to abandoned babies at the Chardon Street Home, the matron, attendants, nurses and others had a surprise and admiration today for the latest arrival there—a little baby girl, abandoned by a weeping mother in the South station waiting room last night.

At the home they wonder how any woman could leave such a lovable baby. They think it is no wonder the mother wept as she left her little girl for strangers to shelter.

The girl waif is between three and four months old, is the practised estimate of the matron. Her eyes are big and blue—not light blue, nor dark blue—but what the matron calls steel blue.

"They are beautiful baby eyes," says the matron, "big and steel blue. Her skin is clear and she looks bright and happy. She is healthy, but not overplump. And there isn't a thing about her clothing to identify her."

The clothing is common, not so good in quality as the baby is in looks.

The abandonment of the baby was seen by a few spectators who were waiting in the South Station at 9 p. m. A woman, in mourning dress, and dressed in a dark suit, came into the waiting room, carrying a baby in her arms. She was seen to press a handkerchief to her veiled eyes. She was crying. A few moments later she placed the baby on one of the bench seats and started toward the door. She went out and did not come back. By that time it dawned on some spectators that the baby had been abandoned. A guard was notified, but the mother was not to be found.

HOUSE MAY TAKE UP SIMS-GLOVER ROW

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The House probably will be asked on Monday to take official cognizance of the attack made yesterday upon Representative Thetus W. Sims by Charles C. Glover, the millionaire banker, who refused like Hinsdale Norcross in Farragut square and engaged in an altercation with Sims. Representative Sims, himself, is disinclined to raise the constitutional question of immunity from accountability for words spoken in debate, but one or more of his colleagues have positive views on the subject.

GIRLS TAKE MAYFLOWERS TO MRS. EATON

Mrs. Jane Keys and Dorothy Ainsworth Eaton will today visit their mother Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, in the Plymouth Jail for the third time since her arrest on the charge of killing the Admiral by poison. They will be accompanied by Attorney Francis J. Geogan and will carry a bunch of Mayflowers picked near the Eaton home by James Prouty, an aged neighbor.

Attorney Geogan is expected to report to Mrs. Eaton on many valuable points for the defence, discovered by Judge Kelley of Rockland on his trip to Washington and Alexandria in connection with the probating of the Admiral's will. Judge Kelley is expected to return tomorrow or Monday.

Mrs. Eaton will undoubtedly face trial alone, as the authorities say that a second arrest in the case, once widely discussed, is now improbable.

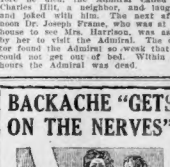
"There is no evidence to warrant a second arrest," one of the officials connected with the case declared today.

Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Eaton's mother, has recovered from the shock of the tragedy and arrest and is now able to go out door daily.

Investigation develops that the first symptoms of Admiral Eaton's illness were noticed on March 24, when he suffered from what appeared to be stomach trouble. The next day he was up and about again. He made several calls on the neighbors and on Wednesday, March 5, had apparently completely recovered.

On Thursday afternoon, the day before he died, the Admiral called on Charles Hill, a neighbor, and laughed and joked with him. The next afternoon Dr. Joseph Frame, who lived in the house to see Mrs. Harrison, was asked by her to visit the Admiral. The doctor found the Admiral so weak that he could not get out of bed. Within six hours the Admiral was dead.

BACKACHE "GETS ON THE NERVES"



"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Many who suffer from backache and weak kidneys are unnaturally irritable, fretful and nervous. Not only does constant backache "get on the nerves," but bad kidneys fail to eliminate all the uric acid from the system, and uric acid irritates the nerves, keeping you "on edge" and causing rheumatic, neuralgic pains. Doan's Kidney Pills cure these ills by curing the kidneys. Here's proof:

A Boston Woman's Testimony—

Mrs. Thomas J. Ellis, 590 E. Third St., South Boston, Mass., says: "I was in poor health and suffered terribly from pains in my back, head and limbs. I could hardly do my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, and I have never had any serious trouble since."

CASSIDY TELLS HOW TO PROTECT PUBLIC FROM ROTTEN EGGS

The Pennsylvania Legislature, in a bill signed by Governor Tener last week, has shown the way for Massachusetts, Mr. Cassidy declares today. The bill provided that rotten eggs—"rots and spots," shall be denatured mixed with kerosene before being taken from the room where they were separated from good eggs.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The Massachusetts Legislature will receive within a few days the report of the Committee on Public Health, on the bill introduced by Representative John F. McCarthy to abolish the traffic in rotten eggs in Boston.

The bill introduced by Representative McCarthy in word for word, I believe, the same as the Pennsylvania law.

But the Pennsylvania Legislature has passed an amendment to their State law, and this amendment has been signed by Governor Tener, strengthening their law immensely.

Therefore I address myself today to members of the Committee on Public Health and to members of the Legislature. I wish to call to their attention this act by the Pennsylvania Legislature.

The measure enacted last week in Pennsylvania absolutely ends the traffic in rotten eggs for food. It provides that the commission merchant, when he candles out the eggs he receives from the West or from the storage houses, shall break his rots and spots—the eggs he declares are unfit for food—and into the mixture of liquid eggs he shall pour kerosene.

Let me explain why this measure is so effective.

At present in Boston, the commission men separate their rots and spots from the good eggs. Then these rots and spots—in the shell—are sold to egg firms. Four of these egg firms who buy the rots and spots are now under indictment charging them with selling them been just the for food.

Cans in Storage.

Now the rots and spots discarded by the commission man as unfit for food—are not fit for food after being broken into cans in a filthy cellar. The commission men who sell the rots and spots unbroken declare they are not fit for food. But the egg breaking establishments use them for food purposes just the same.

These rots and spots are not fit for food. But the egg breaking establishments use them for food purposes just the same.

These rots and spots are not fit for food. But they have, as a matter of fact, a real commercial value for use by tanners in tanning leather. The greatest difficulty the food inspectors have encountered in enforcing the food laws against selling rotten eggs, has lain in this fact that rotten eggs have a legitimate use.

This very day, for instance, I feel confident there are in storage in Boston 500 cans of eggs, and I feel equally confident that practically all of these cans bear a label declaring they are not for food purposes.

As a matter of fact, practically all of those eggs now in storage will eventually find their way into foods—and I say this because:

EGGS FROZEN IN COLD STORAGE CANNOT AFTERWARD BE USED BY TANNERS.

Freezing rotten eggs makes them valueless for tanners' use. Therefore I declare that all frozen eggs in storage in Boston are intended for food—although many of them are otherwise labelled.

The problem has been to find a way to protect the public by abolishing the sale of rotten eggs for food, and still to make it possible to sell those eggs to tanners.

The solution lies in this Pennsylvania bill. I can summarize the effect of the law have been broken, and

1—Hereafter, all rots and spots sold will have been broken, and kerosene will have been poured into them.

2—Kerosene in the eggs makes it impossible to use them for food.

3—Kerosene in the eggs DOES NOT affect ethelr value to tanners.

Therefore, the Pennsylvania law is a real short cut, protecting the public absolutely from rots and spots.

It may be too late for the Committee on Public Health to incorporate this provision in the rotten egg bill. It is not too late, however, to amend the bill in the House of Representatives or in the Senate by inserting or adding this amendment.

I want to urge upon the committee and the Legislature, then

THAT THE ROTTEN EGG BILL INTRODUCED BY REPRESENTATIVE JOHN F. MCARTHY SHOULD PASS.

THAT AN AMENDMENT SHOULD BE ADDED, REQUIRING COMMISSION MEN OR OTHERS HANDLING EGGS TO POUR KEROSENE ON THE ROTS AND SPOTS BEFORE SELLING THEM.

Would Abolish Sales.

If an egg act along these lines be passed, the SALE OF ROTTEN EGGS FOR FOOD PURPOSES WILL BE AUTOMATICALLY ABOLISHED IN MASSACHUSETTS.

I believe every man, woman and child in the State—not in the rotten egg business—will favor this bill, with the amendment. I have described. I believe the bill should pass.

PLANS BILL TO BAR "BOMB" GOLF BALL

Senator Fay of Medford will on Monday present a bill to bar the explosive golf ball, which has caused a number of accidents in Massachusetts.

The penalty for having such a golf ball in possession is set at $500 for the first offence. The explosive substance is used to make the balls more resilient.

BOSTON GIRLS AID FLOOD SUFFERERS WITH HORSE SHOW

Miss Dorothy Forbes and Miss Alice Sargent believe today's receipts from the charity horse show they are conducting at the Park Riding School will appreciably increase the fund for the flood sufferers in the West.

All the classes have been well filled, and capacity houses have watched the exhibition.

The jumping of Miss Dorothy Forbes' Dreadnaught was the feature of the opening show, and Battery A gave a fine exhibition of rough riding.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS HELP MAINE FUND

BURIAL OF THE MAINE.

Buried in state in the Nation's gown,
Red, white and blue with stars for a crown,
In bloody baptism cleansed of its dross,
By the seasalt and surfges of its cross.
Ah, swift to thy lips the death-chalice pest,
And the God of Battle knoweth the rest,
But with rose-bloom we give thee love's best,
With charity wide as the sea we leave thee to rest.

EVER M. HOLMES.

This poem, which accompanied a contribution to the Maine Memorial Fund, proves that after fifteen years the tragic fate of the sailors of the Maine is still a source of inspiration.

The beautiful monument in Central Park, the gift of the whole nation, and for which $40,000 more is needed in popular subscriptions, will inspire patriotism in Americans for centuries.

At the annual encampment of Spanish War Veterans in Salem today resolutions were offered pledging financial and moral aid on the part of the Spanish War Veterans of the Department of Massachusetts. A letter, in part as follows, was read:

Dear Sir and Comrade:

An event of paramount significance to all the men who followed the colors in 1898, both in the Tropics and the Orient, will be the formal unveiling of the National Maine Monument in Central Park, New York City, the approaching Memorial Day. It is the costliest and greatest monument ever erected to the soldiers and sailors of the Spanish War. National, State and Veteran troops and sailors will participate in the unveiling.

In order to make this monument a perfect architectural creation, the Municipal Art Commission has directed the erection of appropriate gates and approaches. The national committee has invoked the aid of patriotic citizens in raising the fund necessary for the latter purpose.

As this monument commemorates the conflict in which you and I were actors, it is in the fullest measure our peculiar possession. We should, therefore, lead all patriotic and veteran societies in the work of gathering subscriptions.

MAURICE SIMMONS,
Past Commander-in-Chief,
Chairman of the U. S. W. V.
Maine Monument Committee.

Bryce's Successor Now on His Way to Washington

LONDON, April 19.—Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, successor to James Bryce as British Ambassador to the United States, sailed today for New York en route to Washington. This makes it appear that Sir Cecil will take up his duties at once and that Mr. Bryce will immediately be relieved of his Ambassadorial duties.

At the time of the announcement of his resignation on November 11, Mr. Bryce announced that he would remain indefinitely at Washington and it was supposed that this course was taken because of the delicate negotiations then going on relative to the Panama Canal toll matter.

Sir Cecil has had a long and distinguished service in the British diplomatic corps. He is no stranger in Washington, having served there in the British Embassy under Lord Pauncefote. He was there when Lord Curzon went there to marry Miss Leiter and was one of the leading figures in that ceremony.

WIFE TO FIGHT PLEA OF FRAUD IN MARRIAGE

Mrs Isabella Ballard of Marblehead, who has been sued for divorce by Harry C. Ballard on the grounds that he was married through fraud, declares she will contest the case. "I wouldn't give him a divorce if he wanted one," she said.

Ballard, who is supposedly rich, claims that when he was married, March 27, 1911, to Mrs. Isabella Fuller, who before that was Mrs. Isabella Tibbetts, he was intoxicated and did not know what he was going on. He alleges that he was put to bed the night of the wedding by members of his own family at his own home. The first he knew of the marriage, he says, was when he awoke the next morning and began feeling through his pockets. He found the marriage certificate. He declares he has never lived with his wife.

A few months after the marriage, Mrs Ballard sued Ballard's aunt and father for $10,000, alleging they alienated her husband's affections. The case has not been tried. Mrs. Ballard, through her attorney, claims she was prevented from seeing her husband. Mrs. Ballard came before the public in 1905 by a romantic reunion with her two sisters, from whom she had been separated for thirty years, the reunion being brought about by the settlement of an estate of $40,000 left by their great-grandmother in Portugal.

Phone Girls Lend Sympathy to Sick 'Strike Breakers'

On learning that two of the emergency operators who were brought to this city when the telephone strike was imminent, are seriously ill with pneumonia at a Back Bay hotel, the Boston Telephone Operators' Union voted to extend the sympathy of the union to their afflicted sisters.

The union has officially accepted the plan by which the company officials waived the anniversary payment plan and granted a weekly wage increase.

The three representatives of the operators, who will be elected by the union, will be chosen by ballot at an all-day election which will take place Tuesday at the union's headquarters in the Women's Trade Union League Building, No. 7 Warrenton street.

MRS. WILLIAM STORY WINS D. A. R. ELECTION

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Mrs. William Cumming Story of New York, head of the conservative faction, will be the next president-general of the Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She defeated Mrs. John Miller Horton of Buffalo on the third ballot by 609 to 449.

200 COUPLES AT TECH JUNIOR PROM

About 200 couples were present at the Technology Junior prom in the Hotel Somerset, the ballroom being decorated with Tech colors and banners. The powers for the dance orders formed the favors, leather bill-folds for the men and leather photograph-cases for the women. Alfred T. Wyman was chairman of the prom committee.

PRIVATE PRESSES CHARGES AGAINST LIEUTENANT DUNN

Thomas J. Marley of East Boston, who declares he has been reduced from a sergeant to a private in H Company, Ninth Regiment, M. V. M., has retained counsel to fight the charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and violation of rules he has preferred against Lieutenant John A. Dunn, acting commander.

Marley charges Lieutenant Dunn instructed Francis Gillis, not at the time a member of the militia, to answer to the name of "William R. Montgomery" at one of the roll calls, and had him sent to Derby, Ct., at the expense of the Commonwealth.

Simple Way To Darken Gray Hair

You Can Prepare a Mixture at Home That Does It Nicely.

If every person knew what a simple matter it is to darken their gray hair this sign of advancing years would be a rarity. The ordinary dye or stain is not at all satisfactory and is easily detected, leaving the hair sticky, rubs off or colors the scalp, but this simple recipe, which you can make up at home at little cost, overcomes all these objections and is certain to give splendid satisfaction. To 7 oz. of water add one small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. of bay rum and ¼ oz. of glycerine. This makes a mixture that gradually darkens the hair or beard to a rich, glossy brown, removes dandruff and other ills of the scalp and promotes the growth of the hair. Apply once a week and when it is sufficiently darkened use once every two weeks. You will find if you try this excellent formula that there is nothing that can take its place.

HOPEDALE LAW SHIFTS BURDEN; MILFORD ROUSED

MILFORD, April 19.—The leading citizens of Milford are incensed at the action of the Hopedale town meeting in passing bylaws at the suggestion of ex-Governor Draper to override the striking employes of the Draper Company from holding parades in Hopedale. They declare it is high time Milford was rid of the burden shifted to its shoulders by Hopedale.

John B. Henderson, selectman of Milford, says that unless the Draper Company shows some disposition to meet its striking employes halfway he will petition Governor Foss for a legislative committee to investigate the strike.

The reply of the Draper Company that they will not recognize the I. W. W. is it is understood, not demanded of them. The minimum wage and the piece system are the sole demands of the strikers.

Ex-Governor Draper says pretty much in evidence at the Hopedale town meeting, which passed bylaws giving the road commissioners authority to close a street to public travel any time they deemed it necessary for public safety and convenience.

Pilgrims Lose First to Giants

Both Teams Play Minus Captains

pitcher pulled a bone play, tossing to the plate instead, and Snodgrass scored. Meyers, of course, was safe at first. Murray forced Meyers, Smith to Maranville. ONE RUN.

Pilgrims—Connelly singled to left. Maranville hit into a double play, Ames to Fletcher to Merkle. Myers fanned. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Giants—Merkle walked. He went to third on Herzog's single to right field. Herzog stole second. Devogt's throw reached Maranville in plenty of time to catch Herzog, but the Boston shortstop was watching the plate and let the runner elude him. On an attempted squeeze play Fletcher grounded to Maranville, who caught Merkle at the plate. Herzog took third on the play. Fletcher and Herzog negotiated a double steal, Herzog scoring. Ames and Snodgrass struck out. ONE RUN.

Pilgrims—Smith fanned, Titus lined to Herzog, Devlin singled to left, but was caught stealing, Meyers to Fletcher. NO RUNS.

THIRL INNING.

Giants—Shafer fell for three strikes. Burns strolled on four bad ones. Chief Meyers struck out. Murray skied to Maranville. NO RUNS.

Pilgrims—Fletcher threw out Jackson. Devogt struck out. James went out, Fletcher to Merkle. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Giants—Maranville tossed out Merkle. Herzog flied to Titus. Fletcher grounded out to Myers. NO RUNS.

Pilgrims—Connelly was the victim of three strikes. Shafer threw out Maranville. Myers beat out a slow roller to Merkle. Myers stole second. He advanced to third on a passed ball. Smith fanned for the second time. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Giants—Ames fanned for the second time, Snodgrass singled to left. Snodgrass stole second. Shafer grounded out to Myers, Snodgrass advancing to third. Burns doubled over Titus' head, scoring Snodgrass. Burns took third on a wild pitch. Meyers doubled against left field fence, scoring Burns. Murray singled to right, scoring Meyers. Murray stole second. Also pilfered third. Smith threw out Merkle. THREE RUNS.

Pilgrims—Ames made a good stop and threw out Titus. He made another good play and retired Devlin in the same way. Ames cleaned up the inning by making a fast running stop of Jackson's roller towards first and throwing him out. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

Giants—Maranville blocked Herzog's fast grounder and threw him out. Smith tossed out Fletcher. Ames struck out. It was his third straight wheeze. NO RUNS.

Pilgrims—Devogt fanned. James singled over Shafer's head. As Connelly struck out James stole second. He delayed the steal long enough to draw a throw from Meyers to Merkle, after which the rest was easy. Maranville singled past Merkle, scoring James with Boston's first run. The hit was directly at the Giants' first baseman, who started for it, then changed his mind and let the ball bound into right field. Meyers died to Burns. ONE RUN.

SEVENTH INNING.

Giants—Snodgrass walked. Snodgrass stole second. Shafer walked. Burns forced Shafer and was doubled up, Smith to Maranville to Myers. Snodgrass scored on the play. Connelly ran up the bank to the left field score board in Duffy Lewis' style and pulled in Meyers' long drive. ONE RUN.

Pilgrims—Smith beat out an infield hit, Titus struck out, Fletcher threw out Devlin, Smith going to second. Jackson singled over second base, scoring Smith. Devogt died to Snodgrass. ONE RUN.

EIGHTH INNING.

Giants—Murray singled over Maranville's head. He was forced at second by Merkle, Smith to Maranville. Herzog's drive bounced off James' glove and shot between his legs to Maranville, the latter touched second ahead of Merkle and threw to Myers in time for a double play. NO RUNS.

Pilgrims—James struck out, Connelly singled through Fletcher. Maranville fanned, the second strike was a fair one, four inches outside the plate, and the crowd hooted. Herzog made a running stop over third base and threw out Myers. NO RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

Giants—Fletcher singled to centre. Jackson ran in for the hit and tried hard to get it but stumbled and injured one of his hands, he had to retire from the game, Seymour replacing him. It looked as if Jackson had broken a finger and the doctor was summoned from the stand. Ames sacrificed, Myers to James, who covered first base, James threw out Snodgrass, Fletcher moving to third. Shafer singled to right scoring Fletcher. He stole second and went on to third on Devogt's bad throw. Burns walked. On an attempted double steal Shafer was caught at the plate, Devogt to Maranville to Devogt. ONE RUN.

Pilgrims—Smith batted in right. Titus forced Smith, Shafer to Fletcher. Devlin was also forced at second, Herzog throwing Devlin's grounder to time after catching him. Seymour flied to Burns. NO RUNS.

SULLIVAN WINS OVER BIG FIELD IN ACME RACE

Five thousand people saw Charles H. Sullivan of the Brookline Gymnasium win the ten-mile cross-country run of the Acme Athletic Association today over a field of eighty-three contestants.

George Flemming of the Weston Athletic Association was a close second. Flemming and Sullivan ran neck and neck over the course, but the latter made a dash fifty yards from the finish line and beat Flemming. The winners and their times follow:

Fellsway Club to Open Season with Race Meet Today

The Fellsway Driving Club opens its annual spring season at Combination Park today. Several excellent cards have been arranged.

The club will hold a matinee every Saturday afternoon during the coming season at the Park.

STONE IS VICTOR.

Stone School and Country Day School opened their season yesterday at the Country Day field, Newton, Stone winning 12 to 0.

Right Off the Bat

By RILEY.

IT was due time for the champions to show a little championship class by giving us a whirlwind finish for a change. Until, with the score 5 to 4 against us yesterday, the Sox came to life with a four run windup in the ninth, we were being beaten monotonously by one run balances and dropping games that ought to be won if Boston has a real champion team. We were just beginning to think that maybe, after all, we got that pennant by a fluke last year, when Stahl's crew showed visible evidences of rejuvenation and reversed the proceedings that were fast sending them down the ladder to obscurity.

* * *

BESIDES giving us our first victory over the Athletics, the game was significant because it showed that Foster, the recruit pitcher, was able to work with some success against such clouters as Mack's men; because it proved that Bedient is coming into form, and because it corroborated our idea that Mack's pitchers, aside from Plank, will not stand fire. Brown, Houck and Bender worked for the ex-champions yesterday, and the Sox tapped them for fourteen hits.

* * *

WHILE the Sox have not yet played to last season's form, the Pilgrims gave an exhibition of 1912 form yesterday. When the Giants scored ten runs in the first two innings—seven of them after two were out in the second—it looked like old times. The most lamentable feature of it was the blowing up of "Lefty" Tyler, who is considered next best after Perdue of Stallings' flingers.

* * *

IT was reminiscent of 1912 when the Giants appeared at Fenway Park this morning and afternoon to perform before two holiday crowds. The "fans" who saw both today's games and the world's series contests in the same park last October had a chance to compare the Boston teams in detail.

* * *

THE Cobblers Tigers lost again yesterday, the Browns doing the business, 3 to 2. The eruption created by the Pride of Georgia has been of benefit in one direction. It has given the Browns a much needed opportunity to horn into the limelight. If "Matty," Doyle and Herzog would go on strike, the Boston Nationals might shine, too.

* * *

IF it is true that Honus Wagner must undergo a second operation on his knee and may not return to baseball for several weeks, there is a possibility that the mighty Dutchman will never shine in baseball again. If so, Barney Dreyfuss' Winter pennant hopes are blasted, and his training season at Hot Springs was the most expensive enterprise in which he has ever embarked. Wagner is forty-two years old. Although still a wonder on the diamond, when right, much of his age can scarcely hope to suffer injuries to and operations upon their knee joints and continue great athletes.

Australian Crazed in Effort to Break Club Swinging Mark

LONDON, April 91.—After swinging Indian clubs continuously for 107 hours in an effort to establish a new long-distance record, Tom Burrows, the famous Australian all-round athlete, became hysterical at Aldershot today and attacked his attendants with his clubs.

Burrows originally set out to swing clubs an hundred hours without rest, but when he reached that mark he learned of an old unauthentic record of 112 hours, and determined to beat that mark.

A few hours later the strain overcame him and he lost control of himself. With a yell he darted at his attendants, who fled in every direction. Burrows then sank down exhausted on the floor and went sound asleep. He could not be aroused and was put to bed.

NAP LAJOIE PLAYING HIS OLD-TIME GAME

CHICAGO, April 19.—Nap Lajoie, second baseman of the Cleveland team, now beginning his sixteenth year in major league service, and who was reported as "going back," in batting only around .500, is making dazzling plays at the second station and is near the top of the league.

YALE IN FRONT.

NEW HAVEN, April 18.—Yale defeated Fordham with ease here, 14 to 3. A total of eight hits in the first three innings off Walsh netted ten runs. Healy replaced Walsh in the fourth inning.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19. — The world's champion Red Sox were out to make it two straight from the Athletics today. The men piloted by Jake Stahl were elated by their win yesterday and with the speedy Joe Wood pitching today they felt confident that they would again humble Mack's team.

Eddie Plank was expected to twirl for the Athletics, if the veteran is in shape, the Red Sox will have a hard time winning, as Eddie appears to have the Indian sign on the champions.

A ninth inning rally by the Red Sox turned apparent defeat into victory at Shibe Park yesterday, the champions trimming the Athletics to the tune of 8 to 5. The game was a veritable carnival of pitchers, no less than seven twirlers being at one time or another on the hill.

When Boston went to bat in the ninth lunging the score stood 5 to 4 against them. Chief Bender had been sent to the mound and what the New England sluggers did to him was simple. The chief got an awful lacing. They potted his curves to every safe place in the outer gardens, and when they had finished the Boston total for the inning was five hits, all solid, and four runs.

ARRIET, NEWMINSTER WIN DERBY RACES

DERBY, Eng., April 19.—The Ormeston plate, value $1,000, was won here by Arriet. Bonny Rigg ran second and an American entry, Umbria, owned by Charles Kohler, finished third.

The Chaddeston plate, worth $1,500, was won by Newminster, with the Market second and Buckstead third. The Derbyshire plate, valued at $1,000, was won by Bonfire. Monetery finished second, Hock third.

MEREDITH CAPTAIN OF PENN CUBS

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Ted Meredith, one of the heroes of the American Olympic team, has been unanimously elected captain of the freshman track squad of the University of Pennsylvania.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

CAPTAIN BILL SWEENEY, dressed in a neat suit of store clothes that fitted his graceful figure as paper fits the wall, saw the downfall of his teammates from a prominent seat in the grandstand. He will be able to occupy a similar prominent seat for several ball days to come. He has been set down indefinitely by President Lynch, of the National League, as a result of his verbal argument with Umpire Rigler in Thursday's game.

The argument was a very one-sided affair. Rigler did no talking. What words passed from the mouth of Captain Bill into Rigler's ear and stayed there, They didn't come out of the other ear, at least this is not to be supposed. It is surmised that he sent by special delivery letter to President Lynch what he believed to be a verbatim report of Captain Bill's oratorical effort.

It must have been some oratory for Rigler's version of it promptly drew a suspension for Sweeney by wire. It is figured that if he behaves himself Captain Bill will be allowed to don the spangles again about next Tuesday.

IN the meantime, however, Sweeney's team is crippled, which leads to the remark that the umpire has the best of it from every angle.

Why argue with an umpire?
'Tis a thing that seldom pays;
For naming him in three short words
You're out for three long days.

This isn't very good, I acknowledge, but it is to be hoped that it meets the eye of Captain Bill and that it has the happy effect of making him keep away from the "umps" in future. Captain Bill is probably not looking for sympathy from this department, but he wouldn't get it if he was.

SWEENEY'S version of the affair, told while he was smoking a cigar in the grandstand, is that Rigler ordered him out of the game while he was walking toward that official, and before he could open his mouth to make a protest over a decision. Bill said that in view of this precipitate action on the part of Rigler, he felt called upon to tell the umpire what he thought of him. He declared he did this in a few well chosen words, being careful to eliminate all profane epithets.

Bill confided to the writer that there is a way of calling down an umpire without swearing at him. He did not name his recipe, but it may be assumed that it contains references to defunct cigars and dead mackerel, with a passing hint as to the condition of the atmosphere in the immediate vicinity of the official.

He this as it may, Bill had his say out and drew his suspension as a consequence. After he was banished from the game, which turned out to be a very close one, there was a fine chance to score with Sweeney at the bat, but Recruit Fred Smith had to be sent to the plate and he could not deliver. Maybe Bill wouldn't have delivered, but there is no doubt but that the chances for scoring would have been increased had he been at bat.

Now, as the matter stands, the team will be crippled with Sweeney out of the game at a time when his services are needed badly. His teammates need him and his manager needs him.

STALLINGS himself is not a heckler of umpires. He has instructed his players to let the umpires alone. His kick on Sweeney's suspension is the manner in which President Lynch did it and his failure to get into communication with the head of the National League over the long-distance telephone after he had received Lynch's wire. Lynch refused to talk over the telephone.

Stallings is of the opinion that Sweeney should have been fined instead of suspended if Lynch sought to discipline the player. He believes that the president of the league should have had in mind the fact that the lowly, struggling Boston team, meeting the champions of the league in the opening series in Boston, needed all the encouragement it could get, and that a fine would have been much more fair than a suspension.

THE honesty of President Lynch has never been questioned and probably never will be, out (not referring especially to Sweeney's case) the president of the National League lacks tact and judgment and does not look very far ahead in the upbuilding of his organization. The National League magnates doubtless realize this, and for this reason will not elect him to office for a term of more than one year at a time. It is believed that the wise men of the old organization are keeping their eyes open for the proper leader to come along.

Mr. Lynch is president now, but no matter who is president it is bad business for a ball player to mix words with an umpire.

DORCHESTER PLAYER SIGNS WITH GIANTS

Dave White of Dorchester, who has been pitching well for Georgetown University, has been signed by Manager McGraw of the New York Giants and asked to report May 25. White is a brother of Steve White, the former Exeter and Princeton twirler, who was with the Red Sox a few years ago.

MORIARTY-CHICK IN A DRAW BOUT

LOWELL, April 18.—Jo- Chick of Fall River and Jimmy Moriarty of Lowell fought a twelve-round draw here last night. Moriarty was the better man at leading, but at infighting Chick was much better. The decision was acceptable to the semi-final Larry Burns of Lawrence knocked out Young Ledwig of Brookline in three rounds.

MAT STARS IN THREE BATTLES HERE TONIGHT

With a record of over 100 victories in as many bouts this season and without a fall scored against him, "Cyclone" Burns, Boston's own star wrestler, will be put to the hardest test of his career tonight when he meets Karl Lemle, the Bohemian boy with the perfect build, in one of the three bouts at Mechanics Building. The match will be to a finish, best two falls out of three, under the catch-as-catch-can rules.

In another finish match, George Lurich, the Russian, who has made several fine showings here, will be pitted against Paul Sampson, a powerful German, towering five inches over him and weighing forty-five pounds more than Lurich. The latter, however, is confident of winning on science and experience. He is equally matched with the German in strength.

The opening bout will bring together "Crackerjack" Butler, the welterweight champion of New England, and Fritz Tanson of Laconia, N. H., the holder of the Lord Lonsdale belt. They will meet in a thirty-minute limit match.

It is the general opinion of those who saw Burns and Lemle against each other two weeks ago that their match tonight will be a long-drawn-out affair, and that the man with the better endurance will win. Both are wonderfully strong in this respect and it looks as though the local wrestling populace will see one of the best-contested matches ever held here.

The outcome of the Lurich-Sampson match is being awaited with eagerness. Sampson is new here, but if accounts from the West are to be believed, Lurich will meet a worthy opponent.

The to hold will be barred from all the bouts this evening. The bouts will be run off without a minute's delay. There will be no intermissions between the contests.

WORCESTER BEATEN BY BRIDGEPORT

WORCESTER, April 19.—The fine pitching of Stephenson, recruit pitcher for the Worcester team of the New England League went for naught as a result of the errors of Worcester infielders, which enabled the Bridgeport team of the Eastern Association to win, 9 to 8. Stephenson struck out eight men. Connolly of the locals hit safely three out of four trips to the plate.

EPPA RIXEY SIGNS WITH THE PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Eppa Rixey, the left-handed pitcher of the Philadelphia National league baseball club, has signed his 1913 contract and departed with the team for Brooklyn. Rixey's failure to sign sooner, it is said, was due to his desire to continue his studies at the University of Virginia until June.

JOHNNY COES BEATS GARDNER IN BOUT

GLOUCESTER, April 19.—Only a small crowd turned out to the meeting of the Lenox A. C. at City Hall, when Johnny Coes, the South Boston lightweight, won the decision over Cy Gooskin of Boston after ten rounds of hard fighting. Coes gained a big advantage in the seventh, when he nearly put Goodwin away.

LEO HANDY FIRST IN BROOKLINE RACE

Leo Handy of the Brookline Gymnasium Association won the final heat of the 100-yard swim for the town of Brookline championship in the Brookline tank last night, defeating Ber- James and Elliot Church of the Brookline Swimming Club, in 1m. 2 1-5s. Church finished second, with his columnate a close third.

America Chaves has been elected to head the Arlington High baseball team, Captain Chaves succeeds Philip Bower, who resigned the captaincy.

WIN FOR THAYER.

The Thayer Academy baseball nine opened its season with a victory swish, taking Norwell High off its feet by a score of 50 to 1.

New Boxing Club to Open at Arena at End of Month

A new club to be known as the Arena A. A. will open the latter part of this month with quarters at the Boston Arena, St. Botolph street, where weekly meetings will be held. The officers of the new organization are Daniel W. Lane, president; Aleck McLean, vice-president; Henry Lewis, secretary-treasurer. The board of directors are Miah J. Murray, John J. McGann and Aleck McLeng.

The club intends to follow the same policy which made the Armory A. A. such a successful athletic organization, and will promote both amateur and professional athletic events.

John McGann will be matchmaker for the club, and the opening date and card will be announced in a few days. The treasurer's office will be located at No. 1160 Washington street.

Holy Cross Meets Cornell in Clash on Diamond Today

WORCESTER, April 19.—Holy Cross and Cornell will clash in a big game here this afternoon and a record-breaking crowd is expected to turn out in order to see the fray. Both colleges are represented by strong teams and a slashing game is expected.

Holy Cross is out to win. The Worcester team is in fine condition as a result of the practice which it had in the South and its early games in the North.

The local ball tossers will have to play at top speed, however, in order to vanquish Cornell. The team from Ithaca is reported as being fast and is expected to give a good account of itself.

FLYNN AND MUNICE SIGN FOR BOUTS

Eddie Flynn of Lynn has been matched to meet "Chick" West at Willimantic, Ct., on April 22. Flynn is boxing in good form and recently defeated "Young" Jasper. Johnny Munice, Flynn's stable mate, clashes with Al Shubert at New Bedford on April 28.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the evening papers of Boston combined.

AD WOLGAST TO MEET MURPHY ON THE COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Lightweights Ad Wolgast and Harlem Tommy Murphy clash here this afternoon in their second twenty-round battle. The last, it will be remembered, was a fast bout to a draw.

Great interest is being displayed in the bout and a big crowd will be at the ringside. The advance sale of tickets has been heavy. The betters are also taking a big interest in the mill and many bets are being registered. The men will probably enter the ring with even money prevailing.

Both battlers remained in their training camps up to yesterday and both gave out the word that they were in the best of condition and confident of winning.

Big crowds have been daily visitors at the training camps. Wolgast at Ocean Beach and Murphy at San Rafael, in order to get inside "dope" on the boys.

It might also be said that Wolgast has been under surveillance ever since he underwent an operation for appendicitis at Los Angeles nearly a year and a half ago. It was an unusual circumstance for a world's champion, at the height of his career, to be taken down with an ailment that made him a subject for the surgeon's knife. At the time, it will be remembered, expert opinion favored the idea that it would be a case of enforced retirement for Wolgast, and so that no time should be lost, several other lightweights laid claim to the title and expressed a willingness to defend it.

But Wolgast took hold again and is fighting still. He has started with his championship, but under remarkable conditions. It was his own punch and not the other fellow's that deprived him of the title and ever since the one wish has dominated the wielder—a decision to qualify for a return match with Willie Ritchie, who deposed him as lightweight king.

The House on the Marsh

A Celebrated Mystery Story by Florence Warden

PART II.

As I lay thinking of all the strange and horrible events which had filled my life lately, the thought of Mr. Rayner lying concealed in his own house, perhaps hid in some cellar, the existence of which was unknown to everyone else, came uppermost in my mind. It was the most dreadful blow I had ever experienced to have my respect and affection for a kind friend turn suddenly into horror of a great criminal.

But I would not believe that he was all bad. How could a man who was so kind and sweet-tempered have no redeeming points at all? And it was I, who had never received anything but kindness at his hands, who—innocently, indeed—had driven down this pursuit upon him. There were only two things that I could do now. I could pray for him, as I did most earnestly, that he might repent of what he had done, and become in very truth all that he had seemed to me, and I could perhaps let him know how the thought that it was I who had brought down justice upon him tormented me.

A possible means of communicating with him occurred to me. In spite of the doctor's prohibition I sprang out of bed, got my desk, and wrote a note asking for forgiveness, and giving him a full explanation of the way in which, in all innocence, I had written a letter which had led to this pursuit of him. I told him the house was being watched and was to be searched before long, and begged that, when he got away, he would find some means of letting me know he was in safety.

"I do pray for you every night and morning. I can't forget all your kindness to me, and whatever you have done, I don't wish to do so," I added, as a last thought in a P. S., and then I put on my dressing gown, and when I heard nobody about, slipped down by the back staircase to the study, where I put the note, directed simply to "G. Rayner, Esq.," just outside the drawer of his writing table, and crept guiltily upstairs again.

Mrs. Manners came to see me that afternoon. Laurence had confided nearly everything to her, and she was made more severe upon Mr. Rayner than I—quite unchristian, I thought, and rather angry with me for not being as bitter as herself against him.

"Don't you know he wanted Sarah to kill his own wife that he might marry you, child, and, when Sarah was taken ill and couldn't do it, he wanted to run away with you?"

"Yes, but as he was prevented from doing either of those things, it is easier to forgive him. Don't you think I ought to try to forgive him, Mrs. Manners?"

"I don't know, I am sure, child" said she, after a little hesitation. "But I think it ought to require an effort."

Then she told me that, when Laurence had heard that morning through Jane of the night's adventure he had gone to Dr. Lowe and insisted upon Sarah's removal to the county lunatic asylum that very day, and I never saw the poor creature again.

When Mrs. Manners had left me, and Jane had come up at 4 o'clock with a cup of tea, I insisted on getting up and being dressed, and I wanted to see Mrs. Rayner and find out whether she had heard of Sarah's departure. I heard that she had gone to her room in the left wing, and, having taken the precaution to wrap a shawl around me before entering that long, cold passage, I passed through the heavy swing door, the very sight of which I hated.

I was opposite the storeroom door when it was softly opened, and without being able to make any resistance, I was drawn inside by a nun's arm. I looked up, expecting to see Mr. Rayner but was horror-stricken to find myself in the arms of Gordon, the man who had shot me. It was so dark already in the storeroom, lighted only by one little high window, that, his back being turned toward it, I could not see his face.

"Don't tremble so," said he—his voice was always hard, but he did not mean to speak unkindly. "I meant to do for you before I leave this house, but this has saved you," and he showed me my letter to Mr. Rayner.

"Do you know where he is?" I asked eagerly.

"No, ma'am," said he, in his respectable servant's manner, "but I should say he is on his way to America by now, for he meant to have taken you."

"Me? America?"

"Yes, ma'am. Miss Hablee was to have been left at Liverpool station and brought back to the Alders."

"But I wouldn't have gone."

"I beg your pardon, ma'am, but I think your will wouldn't have stood out against James'—Mr. Rayner's.

"I have nothing to keep me here now, ma'am, so I shall be off tonight, and if you care to hear how I am getting on you will be able to do so by applying to my late master, Mr. Carruthers."

He led me courteously to the door, barred me out, and shut himself in again, while I went on, trembling and bewildered, toward Mrs. Rayner's room.

I knocked at the door. At first there was no answer. I called her by name and begged her to let me in. At last I heard a voice close to the other side of the door.

"What do you want, Miss Christie?"

"May I come in, Mrs. Rayner? I have something to tell you."

"I—will let you in."

"Oh, Mrs. Rayner," I cried, aghast, "is this your room—where you sleep?"

"I have slept in it for three years," said she. "If my husband had his will it would have been my tomb."

THE heartless cruelty of Mr. Rayner in allowing his poor, submissive wife to live in a room such as he would not for the world have kept horse or dog, or even his violin in, shocked and repelled me and wrung from me the cry:

"The villain!"

"Hush," said she. "He may be listening to us now."

"I don't care," cried I, passionately. "I am glad if he hears it—if he heard me say that this morning I hoped he would escape. Now I hope they find him, for they cannot possibly punish him as much as he deserves. Oh, Mrs. Rayner, and I—I—sleeping up in the turret to be out of the damp. How you must have hated me!"

"I did once, I own," she whispered, sinking into a chair and taking the hands I had stretched out toward her. "But it was foolish of me, for you did not know—how could you know?"

"But why did you stay? Why did you say nothing about it? And why were you not glad to go upstairs, instead of begging, as you did, to remain here?"

"Because," she whispered, her nervous agitation coming back again, "I knew that while I remained down here they would not kill me outright; they would not let me die down here and introduce doctors and strangers to examine into the cause of my death into this room I knew that a change of room would be my death warrant; and so it would have been but for the accident which happened to Sarah on the very night when, but for you, I should have been sleeping upstairs ready to her hand."

Mrs. Rayner continued.

"He hates violence; all was to have been over by his return, and he free to marry you."

"But he couldn't. I was engaged to Laurence, Mrs. Rayner."

She gave a little bitter smile.

"And do you think that with Laurence away and Mr. Rayner here, you could have withstood him? In spite of his soft manners, he has a will that acts like a spell. I tell you," said she twisting my fingers nervously, "though you say he is an American, and Laurence Reade says I shall never be in his power again, his influence is strong upon me even now. There is no grace, no freedom for me as long as he lives."

"Mrs. Rayner," said I suddenly, "may I ask you if what Mr. Rayner told me when I first came is true—that you were rich and he poor and that he lived on your money."

"No, it is not true. I had a little money when he first married me, which he ran through at once."

"And is it true you once wrote books, and had a little boy, whose death made a great change in you?" said I, slowly, watching her face.

"No, I never had any child but Moana and Hablee."

"Then what did he——"

"What did he tell you so for? He delights in making up fantastic tales of that sort, and often in making me bear witness to the truth of his inventions, it is part of his wild humor. When he went away to carry out the robbery he would let me know what he was going to do—to bring to torture me."

The fiend calmness with which she told me all this was maddening to me.

"Why did you bear it? Why didn't you rebel, or run away, while he was engaged in a robbery and tell a policeman?"

"If Sarah had killed me, and you had married Mr. Rayner," she answered, staring straight at me, "you would have understood why."

Before the end of the day I heard that Mrs. Saunders had disappeared without any warning or any application for payment of her services, as soon as Sarah had been taken off to the lunatic asylum.

"She doesn't expect to see Mr. Rayner again then," I whispered to Mrs. Rayner, who came to my bedside to tell me the news, "or she would never dare to do this."

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"GEORGE," said the Manicure Lady, "I ain't felt so romantic as I have this forenoon for a long time. I don't suppose barbers ever feels very tender like and pensive except when some Joe with a hard beard gets shaved twice over and gives them no tip. But it is different with us, George. You wouldn't believe it, would you, if I told you I can hear robins whistling for rain and doves cooing for their mates even if I am sitting at a manicure table right down here. The way I feel this morning there is a golden haze around the sun and purple edges to all them clouds that floats fleecy like overhead."

"What's all this about?" the head barber wanted to know. "It must be romance or bop. I never heard you get gushy before. You look kinda pale, too, Kiddo. You better try going to bed early and gitting up early for a week, and eat plenty of celery to keep your nerves good."

"Well, George, I might as well tell you that I do feel kinder romantic this forenoon, the first time since that fellow over in Chelsea proposed to me and shattered love's dream by copping one of sister Anne's rings off from the dresser and never returning to our humble home. That was years ago, George, and just as the scar was healing over, here I go and get sentimental again."

"Who is it this time?" asked the Head Barber.

In Love With a Book

"It ain't no fellow," answered the Manicure Lady. It's a book that I was reading last night. Brother Wilfred was reading it down at the Public Library and when nobody was looking he stuck it under his coat and smoothed home with it. It was worth the risk, George. It's one of the grandest books I have ever saw. The name of it is 'Famous Loves of History.' It tells all about Napoleon and Josephine and about a young fellow named Paris that fell in love with a girl named Helen that used to live in Troy, N. Y., and it tells about Anthony and Cleopatra and how Mr. Anthony lost the Roman Umpire by staying in Egypt so long that his wife had to go to Reno or some place like that to get a divorce."

"I never was much on them romances," said the bald barber. "The way butter and eggs are selling now, it takes all the mental rithmetic to keep Mary and the children. When you get to live four flights up without no elevator and git most of your eatables at a delicatessen store, love's young dream gits kinda frazzled around the edges."

"But just the same," insisted the Manicure Lady, "I think that a girl or a gent can forgit their surroundings when they set down with the book like that 'Famous Loves' book. Gee, George, when I was reading about that there young Paris stealing a King's wife away and taking her up-state to Troy, it made me wish that some fellow would come down from the White Mountains and kidnap me away from my fireless cook stove. Course it would hurt the old gent a lot, because with my earning capacity, I am the kind of a girl that can go right on loan on. The old gent wouldn't care if somebody came along and kidnapped Brother Wilfred, because the poor boy is so far from a job as he has ever been in all his bright young career. It was only last night he nicked father's bank roll for a case note, the last one he will get for some time, as the old gent has sworn off getting mellow."

"I don't see anything very romantic about stealing the King's wife or any other man's wife," said the head barber.

Wanted to Be Stole

"Don't you?" said the Manicure Lady, "Gee, I think it must have been simply grand to have lived in them days and to have been stole by some guy with a little more class than this Paris fellow. In the book told about Romeo and Juliet.

"I was thinking, George, that if I could have a handsome young fellow like Romeo put a ladder up against our front porch and whisper words of love to me I would accept his proposal of marriage and beat down and agree with him quick before the porch broke."

"Napoleon and Josephine had an awful sweet time, so the book says. The story tells how much that great general loved his queen and how much she loved him until things commenced breaking bad for him and he lost out in that awful retreat from Moscow and the battle of Bunker Hill, or whatever was the name of that fight he lost to Duke Wellington and his German army. Well, George, I'm sure like that no more, George. When a young fellow wants to get married nowadays he starts saving up until he has money enough to buy a house and lot out in Kearney, and when he progresses and gets turned down he takes the money and loses it playing roulette. There ain't even much love as our forefathers used to have.

"Every once and a while when the old gent comes home from lodge with his fest well spart and a kinda balmy look on his map I git lean him a confiding manner of how they used to walk along them blue-bordered lanes, plighting their troth over and over again. Nobody does no more troths nowadays, George, until the young girl's folks has got a report on the young gent from Dun's and Bradstreet's.

"The more I think about them beautiful old romances which can never be no more, the more I wisht I had lived then instead of now."

"If you're going to keep on harping the way you started out this morning," said the Head Barber, "it wouldn't hurt my feelings if you had lived then instead of now, just so I didn't have to live then, too, and be in the same shop with you. Here comes the nervous customer that never likes to have his nerves talk. Humor him, Kid, humor him."

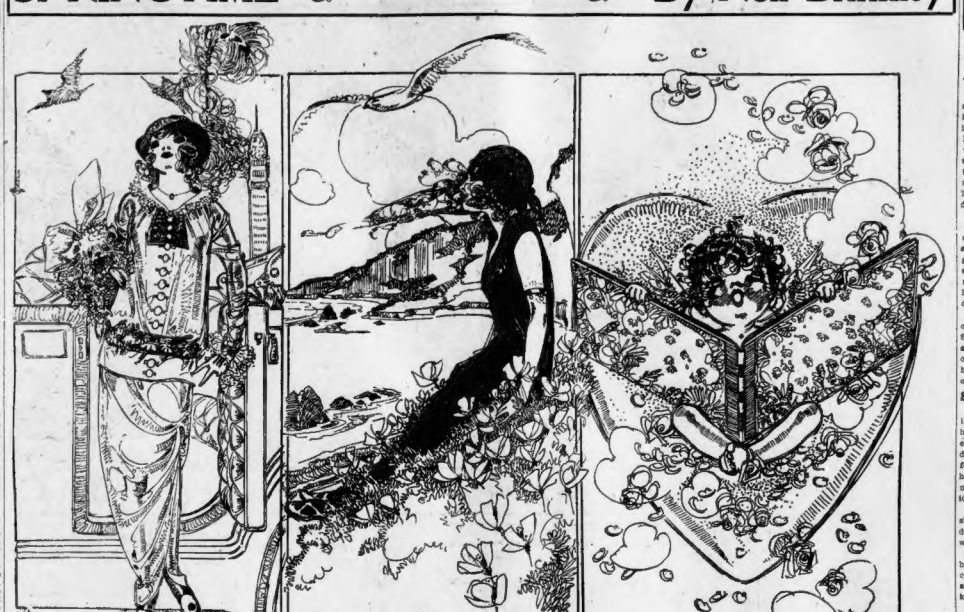
SPRINGTIME

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

By Nell Brinkley



It's Spring-time in Boston town. Out of the back-swung door of her open car Boston, which is a woman most thoroughbred and fair, steps to the gray curb. She—in all the grotesquerie of looped skirt, Elizabeth frill, tortured cockade and sack coat with the belt at the hips, and the riot of tender flowers in those shops with the extra shiny windows and the sweet-smelly doorways—are the only things by which you may know, in Boston town, that Spring has come over the hills and down to town.

It's Springtime in the far Southwest. The sea is as blue as the aquamarine that rests in the hollow at the root of your sweetheart's throat. Over all the valleys and hills it casts a dreamy light. The far islands lie like a dream on the horizon. The hills that sweep to the sea are livid with lovely uplands of green barley and ablaze with seas of golden poppies. All this—peach blossoms and almond and orange—and the girl in bathing togs, with the sea water pearling her hair—tells you that it's Spring-time in the far Southwest.

As for Spring in a fellow's heart. Lay your ear close and listen to the little chap who's singing inside!

The Humility of Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A GIRL who lives in the mountains writes from the depths of her troubled heart.

"I am a young girl of eighteen, and am in love with a young man of twenty-five who lives in the city. He loves me in return and has asked me to marry him. I know that I am just a mountain girl who lives in a little town. If he takes me to the city, where his folks are well-to-do, I know they will be ashamed of me, and also of him. Can you tell me how I can learn the city life and look and dress like a city lady?"

"MOUNTAIN GIRL."

Heaven forbid that I should do a thing so monstrous! If by any thought or suggestion I ever influenced any little girl from the country "to learn city life and look and dress like a city lady," than may my punishment be swift and sure! It could could not be worse than my deserts.

She loves this man with a singleness of purpose, and with her whole heart. She doesn't love him for what such an alliance may bring her in social position or financial returns. She will not give him a heart that is divided with any other man.

She's Like Mountain Air

She is pure and sweet and wholesome, like the mountain air she has always breathed, and her love bears the mark of every true woman's love, Humility. She does not question if he is good enough for her, but if she is good enough for him, and would make herself over to match what she dreams might be his ideals.

After she has lived in the city awhile she will want to make him over! I wonder if he appreciates the treasure he is winning!

If I hoped to make a "city lady" of her, I would introduce her to every deception beginning with the powder can and rouge pot, and ending Chaos alone knows where.

I would accompany her to a dressmaker, and assist in tearing down every conception she has had of decency and modesty. She must wear her skirts vulgarly tight, and immodestly short, and the neck cut indecently low.

She must take off those sensible shoes that serve for purposes of comfort and protection, and put on pumps and silk hose that will cause the eyes of all men to follow her, that being the beginning and end of all ambition of the "city lady."

I would give her a hat that is a torture to the head under it, and a torment to all who sit near, but that is indispensable because its grotesqueness attracts. I would, in brief, take her out in outfitting her that a sign painter observed in painting a cigarette sign: Anything to catch the eyes of the men!

Will His Folks Be Proud?

I wonder when she has been made into a "city lady," and every charm of nature has been tortured, suppressed, pinched, squeezed and pulled into all that is hideous and unnatural, if "his" folks will be proud of her. If they are, then they are the kind of relations one is better off for not knowing.

I wonder if the man who loves the mountain girl will love her just as much when she has become a victim of the prevailing city life epidemic. I doubt it, and because I doubt it I want this little mountain girl to bring to her city home as much of the strength and purity of her native hills that the hypocrisy of the unnatural city life will never find room.

The history of this great, old world will show that ever since man left his mark upon it, he ruged, the strong and the upright have come from the mountains, and the weak and shifting and indecisive have come from the plains.

I do not want this little girl to become contaminated by the lives of the dwellers in the plains. I want her to be always honest and fearless and sincere. To be natural, to be herself, to be grateful that she was in the beginning "just a mountain girl."

For she has a heritage worth more than any superficial knowledge of what makes up a "city lady."

Married Life the Third Year

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Helen and Warren Try to Help the Flood Sufferers and it Develops That Warren Spent Twice as Much on His Clothes as Did Helen

"WELL, that's pretty tough!" frowned Warren, as he finished the letter and threw it across the breakfast table to Helen.

It was the first word they had received from his aunt, whose home had been to the middle of the Ohio flood district. The pencilled scrawl on a piece of wrapping paper, was hardly legible.

Dayton, O., April 4, 1913.

Dear Warren:

We just got your wire asking what you could do. Send us any old clothes, blankets or bedding that you and Helen may have. Will be grateful for anything. We've lost our place, the old gets turned down he takes the money and loses it playing roulette. There ain't even much love as our forefathers used to have.

"Well, maybe Carrie will put in a suit. She pooned today that she had some things. We're going to send these over to her. She's got an old trunk there, and she'll express them all in that."

"Oh, no! no, dear; let's not do that! Can't we send them ourselves?"

"What's the use? Much easier to send them together. Where's that big straw suit case? That'll hold all but the quilt. I'll have a messenger take 'em right over so Carrie can get 'em off tonight."

While Warren was getting down the big straw suitcase from the hall closet shelf Helen hurriedly took out the blue serge dress. It was not good enough to send! She pictured Carrie, Warren's sister, looking over it disdainfully, as she packed it in the trunk. No, no; she could not let me see that! Carrie was so critical she did not want her to know that she had worn anything until it was so soiled and shabby. Quickly she got the brown broadcloth suit. She would send that instead.

"Be that's it?" sneeringly. "You're willing to send Aunt Emma any old thing, but you didn't want Carrie to see what you sent! By George, you've a fine sense of charity, you have. You'd put a plugged quarter in a church plate!" .

With flashing eyes Helen turned on him furiously.

"You're quite right, I didn't want Carrie to see that dress! I didn't want her to know that I had worn anything so shabby. But if I haven't any decent clothes to send your Aunt Emma—it's because I haven't had any! You spend twice as much on your clothes as I do on mine. I save and save and make over and try to do without! That's why I haven't any clothes to give away—because I haven't had enough for myself!"

But Warren only shrugged his shoulders contemptuously. With insolent unconcern he was whistling a popular tune as he buckled the straps of the suitcase.

Helen Embarrassed

"Get a dust rag or something to wipe this off," ordered Warren, as he unstrapped the suitcase.

Helen dusted it off, and they started to work in the closet.

"No, no! I'm not going to send that," as Helen reached for the blue serge dress she had thrown over the chair. "That's really too shabby. I'm sending this blue stend," folding up the brown broadcloth suit.

"Thought you said you couldn't spare that?"

"Yes, I know; but I—I——" Helen floundered uncomfortably.

"Oh, you didn't know Carrie was going to see 'em? That it?"

Helen bent lower over the suitcase as she packed in the things.

Helen Packs the Box

That morning Helen spent looking over Warren's clothes and her own. She got a small packing box, lined it with paper, put Warren's overcoat, the brown suit, some underwear and the quilt.

But the selection from her own things was more difficult. She had so few clothes in the last year that there was really nothing much to send. There was a dark blue serge dress that Aunt Emma might wear about the house, but it was soiled and the lining more worn. She was almost ashamed to send it.

A cashmere wrapper, a couple of last season's shirtwaists and a gray cloth skirt made up her list. She felt it was not enough, but there was really nothing else she could spare.

Why not call up Mrs. Stevens? She had so many clothes! Surely, she would be glad to send something! Helen hurried over to the phone.

Mrs. Stevens was all sympathy.

"Why yes, I'm so glad you let me know. Just the other day I laid out some things, but didn't know who to give them to."

Helen thanked her effusively and said she would send a boy after them at once. As soon as she hung up the receiver, she took it down again to call for a messenger.

The boy came a few moments later, and she gave him the address and instructions to bring back the package. In three-quarters of an hour he returned with a big newspaper bundle.

Helen opened it eagerly. With astonishing dismay she took out a soiled pink satin evening gown with frayed bead fringe. She dropped it to unfold the one underneath, a blue chiffon afternoon frock. With lace yoke and, sleeves and a tight pannier skirt slit up almost to the knee. There was also a pair of gray suede slippers and some elbow-length gloves.

How About the Box?"

Helen's indignation was mingled with a desire to laugh. What could any one be thinking of to send such things to the victims of a flood disaster? What could they want with a ball gown or a chiffon dress? And she had paid the messenger fifty cents to get them here.

What should she do with them? She could not offend Mrs. Stevens by returning them. She had no choice but to write her a polite note of thanks and keep the dresses until she found some way to get rid of them.

"Well, how about that box?" demanded Warren when he came home. "Got everything in it?"

"Yes, dear," hesitatingly, "but they're mostly your things. I didn't have very much."

"Let's have a look at them."

Helen had packed the box in the dining room and now Warren went through it critically.

"Havenit you some sort of a suit you could send—a skirt and coat suit—for Aunt Emma. This thing won't do her much good," holding up the shabby blue serge dress.

"Dear, you haven't a blanket to spare —but I can send a quilt."

"All right; send that. And look over your things; send what you can. Alice is just your size; Aunt Emma's a little stouter, but she could wear your clothes all right. I'd better send this letter over to Carrie," putting it in his pocket as he rose from the table; "she'll want to do something."

STRAY NEWS NOTES

A Cleveland contemporary printed recently a striking little melodrama in five acts. We reproduce it here for our readers.

Act 1.
"Pill 'em up again, McGinnis!"
Act 2.
"Fillemapagain McGinnis!"
Act 3.
"Fillupginnis!"
Act 4.
"Fillinis!"
Act 5.
"Finis."

Spring-sick, spring-tired, spring-languid, no appetite, dull, weak, debilitated—all these terms refer to the condition of thousands of people this spring. The mild, unhealthful winter, allowing the spread of disease germs, the unusual prevalence of prostrating fevers and other diseases, have all contributed to make the blood poor, thin and lacking in vitality. A spring medicine is necessary to restore good health, normal strength, perfect digestion and pure blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla meets every requirement; has a record of a third of a century of successful use. Get it and begin to take it today.

WARD 23 WINS BETTER SERVICE PLEDGE BY 'L'

Acting upon the complaints of the citizens of Jamaica Plain, Mount Hope, Roslindale and West Roxbury about the deficient car service in those sections, Vice-President Brush of the Boston Elevated promises many changes in the running schedule of different car lines.

This information was given to the members of the Woodrow Wilson Club, at a meeting called to hear a report of a special committee on transit facilities by Superintendent J. L. Webber of Division No. 1 of the road.

Superintendent Webber said he was authorized by Vice-President Brush to say certain demands for better car service would be granted at an early date. He said in part:

The complaints in regard to the service along Washington street will be remedied by running cars from Dudley street on 10 and 12 minute time instead of 18 minutes as at present and running these cars to Ashland street by way of Hyde Park avenue instead of making their terminus at Forest Hills, as at present.

This arrangement will give the residents of Mt. Hope eleven cars an hour on Hyde Park avenue. During the normal hours these cars will terminate at Ashland street and during the rush hours at the Hyde Park line.

A Sunday service line on 5 minute time, or oftener if the traffic requires, for the benefit of passengers going to the cemeteries will be introduced, this line running from Dudley street to Ashland street by way of Hyde Park avenue.

The service from Dudley street to Lotus place will be increased by running cars on 6 minute time instead of 8 minute as at present.

Grants Transfers.

The matter referring to the placing of an electric signal on Green street for the benefit of passengers on surface cars transferring to the Elevated at this station will be attended to at once and the signal installed. Transfers will be granted at Egleston square to passengers on inward and outward bound Elevated and surface cars to the Columbus Avenue Subway line and the Franklin Field Dorchester line.

Passengers boarding the Jamaica Plain-South Huntington avenue cars in the subway will be allowed to transfer to Forest Hills cars at the Jamaica Plain car barn, thus receiving the same privilege as passengers boarding the cars outside of the subway have enjoyed the past month.

Transfers at Roslindale square will be granted from any of the three converging lines—that is, the Charles River, the Mattapan-Ashland street and the Germantown lines to either of the other two lines.

Service on the Charles River-Forest Hills line will be doubled. The cars will be run on 7 and 8 minute time instead of 15 minute time as at present.

Regarding the request which was made to extend the Jamaica Plain-South Huntington avenue line to Forest Hills, I will state that this will be done as soon as the loop at the junction of South street and the Arborway can be widened and sufficiently increased numbers of semi-convertible cars is received by the company.

Eight Car Trains Coming.

Mr. Webber stated that seven-car Elevated trains are being run during the evening and six-car trains during the morning and that as soon as the company receives sufficient cars, an eight-car train service will be introduced. In regard to the proposal of Former Representative Francis M. Cummings of Ward 23 that express trains be run from Northampton street to Forest Hills for the benefit of through passengers he said this would require a thorough investigation, but that if feasible this plan would be put into operation in the Fall.

Mr. Cummings also suggested that the Jamaica Plain-South Huntington avenue cars be run express during the rush hours from the subway to Massachusetts avenue. Mr. Webber said the road would consider this plan.

These concessions on the part of the Elevated are the result of a protest meeting of the citizens of Ward 23 last Friday evening. A committee later conferred with officials of the Elevated.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

The New York market was irregular at the end today after a dull and uninteresting session. Price changes were small as a rule. Among issues to show fractional gains at the close were Atchison, Reading, Union Pacific, St. Paul and Northern Pacific. Steel was off a shade, as was American Can. Coppers were a little weaker. Amalgamated was down ⅛, Utah Copper ⅛ and Miami ⅛. Canadian Pacific was weak, ending with a 2 point loss.

Sentiment seemed bearish, but stock offerings were small. There was nothing in today's news to have much effect. The money market remained about the same.

The New York bank statement is as follows: Average statement—Excess cash reserve $18,341,600, increase $3,691,500; loans, decreased $9,179,000; specie, increased $5,972,000, legal tenders, decreased $209,000; net deposits, increased $1,126,000; circulation, decreased $61,000.

Actual statement: Loans, decrease, $10,786,000; specie, increase, $6,517,000; legal tenders, decrease, $3,344,000; net deposits, decrease, $6,288,000; reserve, increase, $4,181,000. Exchanges, $287,038,961; balances, $12,037,372.

New York Opened Lower.

When the New York market opened stocks ruled lower in price, and this was partly attributed to London influences. In the big British market traders were cautious about speculative commitments over the week-end. This depressed Canadian Pacific there and in New York it began at 242⅝, or two points lower than at the close yesterday. It soon rallied fractionally, however. It was said that the way this issue acted confirmed the belief that its recent rise was due to covering by shorts.

Other Stocks Sold Lower.

Among other stocks to decline was Mexican Petroleum. It opened unchanged at 65⅝ and support was expected because of the increase in its dividend rate. But it was affected sympathetically by the downward trend of the list as a whole. It soon sold off.

In spite of the use by bears of the slowness of subscription for its latest bond issue, St. Paul advanced a fraction. But a number of other leaders weakened. Amalgamated went down ¼. Steel common ⅛, Union Pacific ¼, Reading ⅝, California Petroleum ⅝ and New York Central ⅛.

Southern Pacific opened unchanged at 100 and American Can gained fractionally.

Trading on the New York Curb was dull.

American stocks were irregular in London.

No Stock Exchange Then.

This being Patriots' Day and a legal holiday in Massachusetts, the Boston Stock Exchange and Boston Curb were closed. It is not a legal holiday in New York and exchanges did business there as usual.

If there had been any stock exchanges in this country on the 19th of April, 1775, security prices would have taken an awful tumble because of what happened at Concord and Lexington, Massachusetts, "Where the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard round the world." The Revolutionary War began then and subsequently when General Washington and his army were besieging Boston, which was held by the British, the "cost of living" was the greatest ever known here.

Wilson Will Use "Big Stick."

A Washington dispatch says that President Wilson is preparing to wield the big stick on tariff bolters. Democratic Senators must accept the kind of a tariff bill the President wants.

Unless they do the President has given notice that he will appeal to the country to support him and raise such a backfire that Democratic Senators will be charged with seeking to betray their platform pledges.

Financial News in Brief.

The latest story in connection with dissolution of the Harriman roads is that the first agreement was overthrown because the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific could not agree on a price which the former should pay for the Central Pacific without preferential rights on the Benicia cut-off and in the California terminals. It is said that the ownership of the Central Pacific is not involved in present proceedings, and that therefore French bondholders are not affected.

A New York banker is quoted as saying: "The trouble with the market is the vast demands that are to be made on credits—by the railways, by this city and by the State at home and the coming requirements abroad to repair the waste of war and set the new Balkan countries on their feet and to finance the new Chinese republic."

Good buying by farmers of such steel products as wire and wire nails is expected this year because of crop prospects. There will also be an increased demand for steel from makers of agricultural instruments.

The Atlantic Coast Line has ordered 7,050 tons of steel rails from the Maryland Steel Co., which has also received an order from the Baltimore & Ohio for 5,000.

The Missouri Pacific Iron Mountain has about completed the laying of the ninety-pound steel rail authorized under last year's program of track improvement.

Independent steel mills report a falling off in new orders, although specifications on contracts are running fairly heavy.

The Tobacco Products Corporation, in accordance with its plan of foreign invasion, is negotiating, it is said, for the acquisition of the London retail cigar concern of Albert Baker & Co., Ltd. This concern is capitalized at $1,000,000 and has fifty-three stores, a majority of which are in London.

The Bank of Montreal has declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. and an extra dividend of 1 per cent.

CABLE NEWS

Pau Is Hub, Says Frederick Prince.

PARIS—Frederick Henry Prince, master of the Pau foxhounds, who left Cherbourg on board the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, said before the boat train left: "The late hunting season in Pau is the best I have ever known. To my mind Pau, not Boston—where I was born and bred—is the hub of the universe."

Calls Duchess Demented.

LISBON—Replying to questions in the Chamber of Deputies Premier Costa said, in reference to the charges made by the Dowager Duchess of Bedford on April 7 in regard to conditions in this country, that he regretted to say that they were the result of a baseless campaign "initiated by a poor, old demented English woman."

A. J. Drexel Host at the Ritz.

PARIS—Anthony J. Drexel gave a dinner, followed by a reception, to a limited number at the Hotel Ritz. Among those present were Grand Duc Alexandre the Russian Ambassador, and Mme. Izvolsky, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Lehr, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Leishman and Comte Boni de Castellane.

Mrs. Brown Released.

HAMILTON, Bermuda—Mrs. Elizabeth I. Brown, wife of Mr. Evan Middleton Brown of Bayshore, Long Island, who was convicted of stealing a feather worth thirty-six cents and has been serving a month's sentence at hard labor in prison here, has been released. Mrs. Brown originally came from Boston.

New Diphtheria Remedy.

BERLIN—Professor Behring in a lecture before the medical congress at Wiesbaden described a new antidote for diphtheria. It consists of a mixture of diphtheria toxin and anti-toxin which, unlike the old Behring serium, is completely harmless and has a more lasting effect.

Stefanson on Way Here.

LONDON—Vilhjalmar Stefanson, the Arctic explorer, sailed from Southampton for New York today on the American liner St. Paul. He will spend three weeks in America.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Automobile Club of Southern California, with main headquarters in Los Angeles, has refused to identify itself with a Western racing body which would be antagonistic to the contest board of the American Automobile Association. Reaffirming its long-continued and powerful support of the A. A. A., the Southern California Club, at its recent meeting, also declined to recognize the "Western Automobile Association," organized in Los Angeles under the plea that the Pacific Coast did not have proper representation in the contest affairs of the parent body.

Chairman William Schimpf of the A. A. A. contest board visited Los Angeles at the request of the Automobile Club of Southern California to clear the situation in contest affairs. Conferences with the directors of the club resulted in all misunderstandings being amicably settled, and Mr. Schimpf arranged a plan for a committee of seven to administer contest affairs in Southern California under the jurisdiction of the contest board.

Edward G. Kuster of the club was appointed a member of the contest board to work with the committee of seven, to be selected by the club and approved by the A. A. A., one member from San Diego, four from Los Angeles and two from other sections in the club's territory. The "Westerners" then demanded that the club allow them to name all seven members of the committee, to which the club declined to accede.

Wallace Hood, sales manager of the Westcott Motor Car Company, is in town visiting Messrs. Learner and Kemp, the New England distributors of this line. Mr. Hood has met with great success since he joined the Westcott organization and believes that he found two live wires when he picked out his Boston representatives.

NEW RECRUITS JOIN BELGIAN STRIKE RANKS

BRUSSELS, April 19.—The first week of the National Manhood Suffrage strike came to an end today, with the Socialist leaders claiming victory within their grasp.

There was a big celebration throughout Belgium during the day of the twentieth anniversary of the first general strike in the kingdom.

The strikers were orderly, except in some parts of the coal mining basin near Mons, and the police and troops had little to do aside from patrolling the streets and highways as a precautionary measure.

Two thousand woodworkers and 700 hatmakers joined the strike here today. On Tuesday the electrical workers and the employes of artificial gas making plants will join the movement.

Newspapers were not issued here today owing to the strike of the typesetters. Some of them, however, will issue "strike bulletins" detailing the progress of the labor troubles.

The suggestion of M. Hymann, Liberal leader, in the Chamber of Deputies, that the strike be arbitrated was eagerly seized upon in a number of quarters today. Appointment of a special committee to act between the Socialist strikers and the government is urged.

M. Van der Velde, the Socialist strike leader, said: "This is not an economic movement, but a political uprising. We are not complaining about working conditions, nor are we demanding higher wages. This is a national political movement, and we will treat only with the government. Electoral reforms must come or at least be guaranteed before we will give in. No time limit has been set and we have resources to carry on the movement indefinitely."

A few hundred coal miners returned to work at Liege today. Guards were put about the mines. Special inducements had been made to them to produce coal for use of the State railway.

Business at Antwerp is at a standstill.

Island Creek Coal Company

COMMON STOCK DIVIDEND.

The Directors of the Island Creek Coal Company have declared a quarterly dividend of 50c per share upon the common capital stock of this company, payable May 1, 1913, to the common stockholders of record at the close of business April 26, 1913. F. W. BATCHELDER, Treasurer.

MEN WANTED

ON TUESDAY, April 1, several hundred men working for the Draper Company, largely in their foundry department, stayed away from their work without notice to any officers of the company, and without asking for any changes in conditions of employment, or wages; on Thursday of that week, through a committee, they stated certain demands for changed conditions, which were refused by the company; since that time they have not returned to work.

We have employed in the recent past about 2,200 men in Hopedale; about two-thirds of our men have worked continuously, and are now at work; those who are out are on strike, and the strike is being managed by the so-called I. W. W.; the men who are out are substantially all Italians and Armenians, and most of them cannot speak the English language.

Our foundry is entirely equipped with moulding machines of our own manufacture; in that department of our work, we can give employment to several hundred men, who can earn good wages within a very short time after learning how to operate these machines, which are not difficult to handle; as soon as the men become accustomed to the machines, they will be paid for the amount of work done, and they can very easily earn excellent wages.

Men desiring employment should apply promptly to the Shop Office of the Draper Company works in Hopedale, Mass., and they will be given work; only those desiring permanent positions need apply. Telegraph and R. R. station, Milford, Mass.

When Will You Own Your Own House?

How Often Do You Plan About Getting Out Into the Country, and Really LIVING, Instead of Existing in a City?

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

Again—for the hundredth time at least—we advise readers to own a piece of ground, build a house on it, and live on it.

Some have taken this advice, bought the WRONG piece of ground, and regret it. Many have chosen the right spot and are glad of it.

Even the most unfortunate selection, the least profitable purchase, IS A GOOD AND PROFITABLE THING IN THE LONG RUN, IF IT TAKES THE FAMILY FROM THE CITY TO THE COUNTRY.

Buy some ground and OWN your own home.

Get away from paved streets and city dust and a life that is bad for you and bad for your children.

Get out where you can see the sun in the day time and the stars at night, where your children can grow up, noticing the change of the seasons, realizing that such things exist as Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter.

A man living in a city is nothing but a prisoner, free in name.

He is living less comfortably and less sanely than the prairie dogs of the Western plains, for while they foolishly crowd into one hole, at least they have the whole prairie in the daytime.

You can buy land still very cheap. You can get enough for a house and a small garden and a few chickens and some flowers, and you can have a house built with the aid of a building association or otherwise—and the whole thing in the end won't cost you as much as your rent costs now.

The man who owns his own house, who owns the roof over his head and the ground under his feet, whose children have a place that they look upon as their own, gives to himself and to his family a chance a thousand times better than that of the individual who is living in a box called an "apartment."

Be careful when you buy, and careful when you build.

Don't buy land now, unless YOU COULD LIVE ON THAT LAND NOW.

Don't let someone take you in an automobile and show you something "very desirable" if you know that YOU can't afford an automobile and couldn't take time to walk to the land.

Get near a railroad or a good street car system. Don't grudge an hour in the morning or an hour in the afternoon if necessary to take you from your house to your business and back again.

An hour in the morning and an hour in the afternoon can well be spent thinking, reading and planning.

The man who can't use two hours of solitude each day wisely is to be pitied.

Be cautious when you buy, look all around, walk to the place and walk back the full distance to the railroad station or to the trolley.

Go at the thing very slowly. Go and look at the place two or three times. Go at least once ENTIRELY ALONE, without any agent to sing an enticing song into your ear.

Don't buy what you can't afford to pay for. But remember that if you are making a decent salary, that is to say, if you are really able to pay the average rent, YOU ARE ALSO ABLE TO PAY AND GRADUALLY BUY THE HOME AND OWN IT.

Be cautious, conservative, keep within your means, BUT OWN YOUR OWN HOME IF YOU CAN.

And then work with others for the first big reform that ought to come in this country, namely, ABSOLUTE FREEDOM FROM TAXATION FOR THE HOME IN WHICH A MAN RAISES HIS FAMILY—PROVIDING THE HOME DOESN'T COST MORE THAN $5,000.

No man should be taxed on an economical residence in which he is rendering service to the State by bringing up his children properly.

If we can exempt incomes of $4,000 a year from the Income Tax, certainly we ought to be able to exempt the house that costs only $5,000, a house in which a man is bringing up children, in which he lives and which he does not use for profit, from all taxation of every kind whatever.

How to Publish a Small Monthly Paper

The Best Way, Financially Speaking, Is NOT TO PUBLISH IT

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. H. R. L. says, "Please write an editorial on how to publish a small monthly paper."

The best thing is NOT to publish it, inasmuch as you are sure to lose money, also quite sure to lose friends and patience and temper and time.

If, however, in spite of good advice, you feel that you MUST publish a small monthly paper, go to some job printing office, tell the man what you want to print, and ask him how much he will charge you to print it.

He will pay you compliments and tell you that you have a magnificent idea, and that you doubtless will sell at least 5,000 copies to begin—and you will agree with him.

And then, you will make a contract with him to print 5,000 copies, which will enable him to give you a low price, comparatively—and make more money.

Then, poor friend, YOU WILL NOT SELL THE 5,000 COPIES, AND YOU WILL HAVE TO PAY FOR THEM JUST THE SAME, AND THEY WILL BE STORED UP IN YOUR HOUSE, AND YOUR WIFE AND YOUR FRIENDS WILL LAUGH AT THEM, AND YOU WILL COVER THEM UP WITH AN OLD BLANKET.

The second month you will cut your issue down to 3,000, and a little later you will cut it OUT—in the language of the day.

This is not encouraging, but it is a valuable warning.

Children—Parents Should Counsel Them About Their Habits—Eugenics Becoming a Science. Ignorance of Sex Worse Than Drink Evil.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

BEFORE you send your little girls and boys to the public school take them in your arms and talk with them pleasantly, but yet seriously, regarding their conversation and habits while away from you.

If you are not mentally fitted for the task of giving them some knowledge of the great facts which underlie all created life and giving these facts in the right way, it might be well for you to consult some of the women's clubs in your own town and ask for the best teacher of eugenics, and find what booklets have been written to guide parents in these matters.

Eugenics Is Now Becoming an Important Science

This science of eugenics is becoming an important factor in the training of children, and it will not be difficult for you to learn something of its workings. It shows how the world is progressing, for ten years ago, when this subject was discussed by me, it brought down a flock of disapproving letters, and horrified parents declared the proposition was one which aimed at the destruction of innocent childhood.

Now there are eugenic organizations formed all over the world, with the object of beginning to train children in right ideals of sex relations, and in so laying the foundation of mental and moral and physical health for the rising generations. The scientific facts of the dangers of alcoholic stimulants are being taught in school, and it is having its marked effects on the minds of the young.

Ignorance of Sex Facts Is Far Worse Than Drink

One small boy urged his parents to avoid the use of stimulants, giving them a scientific reason for his plan. It will be impossible for that boy to become a drunkard, for deep in his consciousness is the knowledge of the destructive powers which lie in strong drink. The dangers which lie in ignorance of sex facts are much graver than ignorance of the evils of drink. Childhood is imperilled, youth, maturity and future generations menaced by this ignorance.

The public schools and all private schools and all country schools are engendering evil along with good. Children are taught everything save the most vital truths of life during school hours, and there is no guidance or protection given them out of school hours.

Innocent and perverted are thrown side by side, and sacred facts are made known to pure young minds in the guise of obscenity and depravity.

Mothers and fathers are blind and stupid on these subjects, and through conceit and vanity imagine their children beyond and above any danger of contamination. Yet the contamination takes place all the same.

It is the business of instructors to provide the common sense teaching which parents so woefully lack in the training of the young. But let it be done wisely, carefully and delicately. Many books, written with a view of guiding the young away from unhealthful thoughts, only serve to guide toward them, and many instructors, who seek to allay precocious curiosity, produce it by lack of right method.

'When Life Is Young'

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

WHEN life is young
And hope is high.
When the sunshine's gold
And blue the sky.
A man can sing—
No need to try—
When life is young
And hope is high.

WHEN life is old
And hope is dying,
When the skies are gray
And the wind's a-sighing
The song man sings
Is worth the trying—
When life is old
And hope is dying.

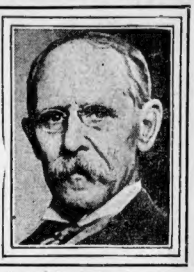
Children Should Be Taught to Be Quiet on Sex

Children should be taught that we are ONE WITH NATURE, ONE WITH MOTHER EARTH. And that as plants spring forth, so does man, and that God, the Source and the Cause, lies back of everything, and that all His methods are beautiful, sacred and holy.

And then they should be taught to be silent on these subjects, and to refuse to talk or associate with children who make light or obscene references to the topic.

Begin today some plan to instruct your children in these matters.

The Universe Is a Vast Theatre Composed Entirely of Vibrations



If There Were No Vibrations There Would Be No Sight, Sound, Touch, Life, or Matter

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

WE live in a world, and indeed in a universe, composed altogether of vibrations. If there were no vibrations there would be no sight, no sound, no touch, no life, and no matter, for what we call "matter" appears to be only an effect of a particular kind of motion, taking place in an imponderable, invisible, untouchable medium called "ether."

The other is shaken one way and a blazing sun shines out; it is shaken another way and a solid world comes into existence. Other vibrations form animals and plants to inhabit the world. Still others dissipate them into apparent nothingness. Everything is in a continual flux, passing from form to form, now visible, now invisible; now solid, now liquid, now vaporous; now nothing at all, as far as we can see!

Made up ourselves of vibrations, we possess, while the atomic combinations of which we are formed persist, the power to perceive yet other vibrations, which tell us all we know of the world and the universe about us.

Out of the midst of this universal quiver science succeeds in selecting certain vibrations, and measuring them. Vibrations from the sun, falling upon the face of nature, come back reflected from a thousand different substances in a thousand different colors, tints and shades.

Sun Vibrations Strike Upon a Rose and Produce Effect of Red

They strike upon a rose, and the rose sends back those that undulate at the rate of four hundred million-million per second and produce for us the effect of the color red. They fall upon a violet, and the violet sends back those that vibrate at the rate of six hundred million-million per second and produce for us the effect of the color blue.

Sound waves vibrating at the rate of forty per second give us the impression of the lowest note of the pipe organ. Vibrating at the rate of 4,000 per second they produce the highest note of the piccolo. The soul of music dwells between those limits. All above or below is, for us, either silence or mere noise.

In a fascinating article in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for May you will read of the efforts that Thomas A. Edison is now making to extend our knowledge of vibrations. Mr. Edison is deaf, as far as ordinary hearing is concerned, but nevertheless he has developed a wonderful power of perceiving sounds that escape others, and he has become so much interested in music, through the development of his phonograph, that he is now enthusiastically at work upon a scheme for the standardization of musical vibrations, the result of which, he believes, will be to place music, for the first time, upon a scientific basis.

But even more interesting for those who love to peer deep into the yet unsolved mysteries of nature is Mr. Edison's plan to catch, and turn into sounds perceivable by the human ear, a multitude of vibrations which are continually playing about us, but which go unnoticed because our ears are not attuned to their rate of pulsation.

The world, as he says, must be full of sounds that we cannot hear because their vibrations are too quick. He purposes to tame some of these wild sounds of nature, and bring them within the range of normal hearing.

A Phonograph Run at High Speed Will Record Earth Sounds

By running a phonograph at high speed it may be possible to catch records of some of them, and, then, by running the records more slowly through the reproducing machine the vibrations may be so reduced in rapidity that they will come within the limited range of the ear. Thus inaudible sounds will be rendered audible, as astronomical photographs picture invisible stars.

Like his dream, a good many years ago, of rendering the roar of sun spots audible on the earth by means of a gigantic telephone, this latest idea of the great inventor is full of the essentially poetic imagination that characterizes all his work.

It should not be expected, however, that the captive sounds that are to issue from his mystic phonograph will differ, essentially, from the highest notes that are naturally audible to us, because when their vibrations are reduced to the same scale they should produce a similar effect. Still, it is possible that there will be evident in these transformed sounds some peculiar quality that will differentiate them from all others, so that we will seem to be listening to melodies as alien to our ears as the fabled music of the spheres.

Musicians Might Judge These Canned Sounds Unmelodious

A concert of sounds caught out of the apparently soundless atmosphere might, judged by a musician, be as unmelodious as the serenade of a band of savages, but heard issuing from the mouth of a phonograph whose record has been exposed only to open space it would thrill the thoughtful hearer with extraordinary sensations.

But, just as Mr. Edison rejoices because his deafness relieves him from a thousand sounds that he does not care to hear, so, perhaps, when he has enabled us to hear what the powers of the air are saying, we may be glad that nature shut them away from our ears, for who can guess what howling and screaming and unearthly vociferation there may be in the seemingly quiet atmosphere about us?

THE PIRATES

By MINNA IRVING

OLD BLACKBEARD and his buccaneers
Who sailed the Spanish Main,
And grim Lafitte, and bad Kidd, too,
Have come to life again.
They're cruising up the broad highway
In cabs and motor cars,
And wearing coats of costly fur,
And smoking big cigars.

They've hauled the Jolly Roger down,
The dollar mark to fly,
And armed themselves with worthless shares
And dividends that lie.
They strip a corporation bare,
And wreck and sink a bank,
And make, as in the good old days,
The victims walk the plank.

Though some of them have studied law,
Or entered politics,
And some in gilded offices
Pursue their wicked tricks,
I know them for the savage souls
That scattered blood and flame
From Holyhead to Panama,
They're pirates just the same.
